Transportation Corps Army
Aviation Field Service Office
BY COL. I. SEWELL MORRIS, USA
Commanding

ONE of the more important recent developments in military transportation was the broadening of the role of the Army's Transportation Corps by assignment to it of responsibilities for logistical support of Army aircraft.

Col. Morris

Pursuant to a directive of the Department of the Army in August 1952, all logistical functions heretofore the responsibilities of the Ordnance Corps pertaining to the Army Aviation program were transferred to the Transportation Corps. By this action the Army's fixed and rotary wing aircraft were formally categorized as new members of the Transportation Corps family.

On 1 Nov. 1952, the Transportation Corps Army Aviation Field Service Office was activated in St. Louis, Missouri. It was designated a Class II activity under the jurisdiction of the Chief of Transportation to provide a means to coordinate and supervise the field aspects of the program. This newly established activity, known by its alphabet short-title as "TCAAFSO," is essentially an operating office. Its primary mission involves the supervision and development of procedures and guidance for maintenance of aircraft on an Army-wide basis; the control of supply action in support of Army aircraft; and the initiation of procurement action, in most cases through Air Force channels, to support the maintenance and supply requirements of the Army Aviation program. As complementary and supporting mission, TCAAFSO is staffed to perform field functions relating to training, inspection, liaison, and engineering as are applicable to the over-all program.

In the execution of its assigned missions TCAAFSO relies heavily upon the services and facilities of the Air Force and the sister Technical Services within the Army. For example, by interdepartmental agreement the Air Force has assumed responsibilities for depot storage, issue, and maintenance. In addition, it handles the initial procurement of Army aircraft, including related air items and supplies. Support on other air items is provided by the other Technical Services of the Army through coordination with the Air Force. Another example of this

Korea Disabled Given "Cut-Rate" Benefits As A Result of Pay Law Modification

Hundreds of Armed Forces officers—a large number of them lieutenants and captains disabled in Korea—are receiving "cut-rate" benefits for their wounds, a JOURNAL survey disclosed this week.

Affected are more than 1,000 Army officers and warrant officers and about two out of three officers in the other Services who have been retired for physical disability since Korea.

It's a result of one of the most serious setbacks to the attractiveness of a military career since the end of World War II.

Pentagon officials concede that the drastic slash in disability benefits is having a marked adverse effect on efforts to obtain, and then to retain, outstanding young men for a career in the Uniformed Services.

The Career Compensation Act of 1949, while it generally raised military pay scales, took away long-established benefits in cases of physical disability incurred in line of duty.

Prior to passage of the Career Compensation Act, an officer retired for physical disability in active service was given 75 per cent of his active-duty pay, tax free.

This is no longer the case. Now, physi-

AN EXAMPLE

This is an example of how the government has decreased the value of a man's wounds in action:

Capt. John Doe, who has seven years service, suffers a shattered right leg as a result of an enemy land mine while leading his company in Korea.

The leg is amputated below the knee. The captain is retired because he is no longer fit for military service.

Had this same combat casualty occurred in WWII, the captain would have received 75 per cent of his base pay, not subject to taxes.

But a change in the law now grants the captain only 40 per cent of his base pay of $355.68, or $142.27 per month.

Since WWII, everything has gone up but the value the Government places on a man's battle wounds.

cal disability determinations are made on a percentage basis.

Incentive Pay Report Reaches SecDef Wilson

The last word at the Pentagon on the Incentive Pay Commission, as THE JOURNAL went to press, was that Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, USNR (Inact.), was scheduled to present the Commission's report to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson late yesterday afternoon.

Pentagon officials could not say at press time whether the report would be made public or not.

However, it has been learned unofficially that the document—actually the report comprises three volumes—will include the following salient points:

The Commission will recommend no sweeping changes in flight pay, but will call for tightening up of its administration, probably by requiring that a board certify the requirement for flying pay status of all those not assigned directly to flying units.

The Commission will say that combat pay should be raised from the present scale of $45 for all personnel to the original proposal of the Defense Department for $50 for enlisted men and $100 for officers. It is believed the Commission will recommend that the rules be liberalized to give combat pay to more men aboard Navy ships.

The Commission will say that overseas pay and sea pay for enlisted men should be stopped after a specified date, but that those currently receiving it should

Army To Announce First Temp. Promotions To Maj.

The first selection of Army officers since 1951 for temporary promotion to major has been made; actual promotion orders are expected to be released next week.

It is possible that some promotions to captain also will be announced next week, but more probably not until the following week.

The selection board to consider eligible officers for advancement to major was convened at the Pentagon on 17 March and the captain board held its first meeting on 23 March.

The Army will announce promotions in increments—certainly one every month and probably two groups monthly. Undoubtedly, the initial increments will be small.

During April, the Army also expects to promote about 50 to colonel and 145 to lieutenant colonel from current eligibility lists.

In considering officers for promotion to temporary major and captain, the boards cannot possibly finish their work before 25 April, since the field has been given until that date to submit recommendations of "highly outstanding" officers for promotion in the five per cent category outside the basic zones of consideration.

SecDef Hits Pay Hike Proposal As Too Soon

Unless he changes his mind, the Armed Forces must look elsewhere than to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson for support of the proposed eight per cent cost-of-living pay adjustment.

It now appears that only a statement from President Eisenhower could revive hopes for a military pay increase this year.

Mr. Wilson was asked at a Pentagon press conference late last week if he supported the contention of his predecessor, Robert A. Lovett, that the men and women in uniform should be given a pay raise.

To this question, Mr. Wilson responded with another question. He asked if those in Service hadn't gotten a raise just a while back.

Secretary Wilson was informed that the last pay boost was a year ago. It is recalled that the Defense Department requested a 10 per cent increase effective 1 July 1951; an increase averaging about 5 per cent for active duty personnel was approved effective 1 May 1952.

Secretary Wilson said he thought it is a little quick to talk about another pay increase.

A reporter said that Mr. Lovett and former Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg both endorsed the eight per cent raise before they left office.

"I wondered how you felt about it," a reporter inquired of the Secretary.

He responded by saying that he always likes to treat people fairly but commented that he has to look at where the money comes from.

Another reporter, familiar with Mr. Wilson's pioneer work in establishing union contracts which adjust pay to cost-of-living factors, asked:

"Is there any chance of putting in an escalator clause?"

There was much laughter at the press conference; however, Mr. Wilson gave no response.

Mr. Wilson's apparent unfamiliarity with the background of Mr. Lovett's action in recommending a pay increase showed obviously that the new Secretary had not yet been briefed on the military pay situation.

However, there could be no mistaking his coolness towards the pay raise proposal, which was sent to Capitol Hill by the outgoing Administration on 19 January and has not yet been introduced as legislation.

The chances are that no influential member of the Armed Services Committees of the House and Senate would introduce the bill now, in view of Mr. Wilson's statement, without strong support from another quarter, namely the White House.

President Eisenhower, during his campaign, said on a number of occasions that

Reds Launch Attack On Seoul Approaches

Unleashing the strongest ground attack of the year, Chinese Communist troops estimated at upward of 3,500 men, drove a three-prong assault against Allied positions on the sensitive valley approaches to Seoul, the South Korean capital. Striking simultaneously at Pork Chop Hill, T-Bone Hill and Old Baldy, the enemy onslaught followed a fortnight of lighter but continuous pressure along the highways leading south across the 38th Parallel. However, according to Eighth Army reports, the heavy Red push did not appear to be the launching of a Spring offensive. Along the rest of the 155-mile front, action was described as light.

2 Platoon Thrust

Striking shortly after dark, the enemy made a minor two-platoon thrust against an advanced position near Pork Chop. This was followed by a major swipe by 2,100 Reds that drove the Allied defenders down on the reserve slope of the hill. However, later reports said determined counter-attacks by the UN re-secured the lost position. Simultaneous moves were made against Old Baldy, where the defenders were said to have held their own, and T-Bone. The thrust at T-Bone was the weakest of the three drives, and the enemy was driven off after a short skirmish.

By morning, Tuesday, the Chinese had driven almost to the crest of Old Baldy. At this point, moving under a screen of heavy artillery and tank fire, United States and Colombian troops advanced forward to wrest away the lost ground from the Communists. Although hampered by rain and mud, UN troops were reported after the counter-attack to occupy two-thirds of the hill mass, and the Reds one-third. The fighting continued, but no casualty estimates were reported by Eighth Army Headquarters. Front observers said enemy losses were high.

UN Push Repelled

By Wednesday morning, observers returning from the field said United States troops held the southwest knob of Baldy. The crest and two spurs to the northeast and northwest were occupied by the Chinese, estimated in strength at about two companies, or approximately 350 men.

During the day, the Chinese beat back two United Nations thrusts despite a heavy barrage of artillery, tank and aerial fire. One counter attack uphill to the northeast was stopped under heavy fire from mortars and machine guns. The second assault attempted to push close to Chinese positions on the crest, but was pushed back. At nightfall, B-26 light bombers took over and dumped 25 tons of bombs on the Red positions. In the early pre-dawn hours, the 7th Division Infantry pulled entirely off Old Baldy, presumably, according to an Eighth Army spokesman, "to make an air bombardment after daylight." When the troops had safely abandoned their positions, Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers roared down on the Chinese-held hill in a terrific bombardment. In flights of four at 20-minute intervals, each plane unloaded two 1000-pound bombs on the broken bunkers and caved-in trenches. Maj. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, who has commanded the 7th Division less than a week, said: "We will retake Old Baldy, and soon, but we want to do it in a well-planned operation and not throw away lives."

High Air Score

In the air war, Fifth Air Force Sabre jets racked up their highest one-day score since 14 January. The day's action, in which two more pilots became double jet aces, bagged six jets and damaged seven. On 14 January, the Sabres downed eight MIG's, probably destroyed one and damaged seven.

The two United States pilots who were made double jet aces, each with ten kills to his score, are Capt. Manuel Fernandez, jr., who knocked down two MIG's, and Capt. Harold E. Fischer, jr., who destroyed one enemy jet. Other victories were credited to Capt. Houston Tuel and 1st Lt. Richard Guidroz.

Including the fighting through 21 March, the score for Sabres during the month is 24 destroyed, five probably destroyed and 19 damaged.

Captains Fernandez and Fischer were the fourth and fifth pilots to become double aces during the war. The others are Maj. George N. Davis, jr., missing in action; Capt. Frederick C. Blesse and Col. Royal N. Baker.

Fighter-bombers Saturday concentrated on enemy industrial installations. Marine Panther jets blasted a hydro-electric station at Wongak, leaving the plant in "shambles." Marine Corsairs attacked a textile factory at Sinchon and other fighter-bombers struck at enemy front-line positions and communications. Aircraft from three carriers in Task Force 77, in the heaviest naval air attack in six months, plastered Chongjin, 30 miles south of the Manchurian border. Over 50 buildings were destroyed, including a warehouse, garages, a power storage building and a transformer building.

Following up the attack the next day, Air Force jets and propeller-driven planes roamed wide over North Korea, smashing 11 bridges and destroying much rail track and equipment on the foe's supply line in Northwest Korea near the border.

USS Missouri Pounds Coast

The battleship Missouri continued its day-to-day pounding of the east coast Red port of Wonsan. The Navy reported that the Communists recently set up new shore batteries around the ruined city, and held 30,000 men in that area. This was calculated by Allied observers as a move to prevent a possible Allied amphibious landing behind the fighting line, which the Reds apparently greatly fear.

United States casualties in Korea rose to 131,129 for the period through midnight 20 March, the Department of Defense announced this week.

The total figure includes 23,298 killed, 95,454 wounded and 11,377 missing in action. Broken down into various services, the figures are:

Army 19,094 killed, 72,205 wounded and 9,950 missing; Navy 372 killed, 1,042 wounded and 87 missing; Marine Corps 3,331 killed, 21,805 wounded and 497 missing; Air Force 501 killed, 42 wounded and 843 missing.

Rep. Short Hails Infantry Calls For Better Shots

The Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee said this week it is unfortunate that the American citizen "has ceased to be a natural good shot" and emphasized that "now as in the past it is the Infantryman with his rifle who must close with the enemy and bring the decisive victory."

This was the message of Representative Dewey Short to the 82d annual members banquet of the National Rifle Association in Washington, D. C.

Congressman Short said that "unfortunately some people are still dreaming of the Buck Rogers type of warfare. They dream of space ships and guided missiles and wars which are fought and won by sitting at home and pushing a button."

"However, most of us know that these are fantasies," Representative Short continued.

He said that "regardless of the atom bomb, guided missiles, strategic bombing, mechanized units and all the tools of modern warfare, the concluding act in any war will continue to be a contest between men—men with rifles and victory or defeat may well depend on which men have the ability to use their rifles best."

Mr. Short said "there can be no reason for not providing the physical means for able-bodied citizens to periodically handle, become familiar with and practice with the basic weapon of the Infantry soldier."

He noted that "in East Germany, by Russian edict, school children receive one hour of small arms training each school day and are graded on it, the same as any other subject. Russian satellite countries are placing similar emphasis on civilian marksmanship training," he said, "realizing that it is the civilian population that fights any big war."

In his address, Mr. Short quoted from a statement made by Army Brig. Gen. John Michaelis, then a colonel commanding an infantry regiment in Korea.

Mr. Short quoted Michaelis, now commandant of cadets at West Point, as follows:

"We put too much stress on information and education and not enough stress on rifle marksmanship and scouting and patrolling and the organization of a defense position. These kids of mine have all the guts in the world and I can count on them to fight. But when they started out, they couldn't shoot. They don't know their weapon. They had not had enough training in plain old-fashioned marksmanship."

"They had spent a lot of time listening to lectures on the difference between Communism and Americanism and not enough time crawling on their bellies on maneuvers with live ammunition singing over them. They had been told to drive safely, to buy war bonds, to give to the Red Cross, to write home to mother—when somebody ought to have been telling them how to clear a gun when it jams."

Then Congressman Short added: "Now, for my money, that sums it up and when General Michaelis says it, I believe it, because I have known him for many years and there isn't a better fighting man in the Armed Forces."

Perm. Promotions to Maj.

Army officials report that the board which has been considering permanent captains for promotion to permanent major has completed its work.

The list is now being processed for transmittal to the White House, where it must be approved before names can be sent to the Senate for confirmation. This means the list probably will be released in April.

The board selecting permanent majors for promotion to permanent lieutenant colonel still is in session, it was reported.

Advertisers in the Army Navy Air Force Journal support the Armed Forces and are familiar with their requirements.

Nine Officer Volunteers Stay Closest to A-Blast

Nine volunteer officers survived an atomic explosion this week from a five-foot slit trench only 2500 yards from the center of the nuclear blast. Only the victims of Hiroshima and Nagasaki during World War II have ever been closer to a nuclear explosion.

The human "guinea pigs," all graduates from military nuclear warfare schools, apparently suffered no ill effects from the blast. They felt the shock and heat waves, but were only shaken and dust-covered as they scampered from the trench after the explosion to avoid the path of the radioactive cloud.

A mile in the rear, some 1300 troops crouched in trenches during the explosion, and a fleet of 53 military planes, including a formation of B-36 bombers, flew over and around the coral-colored mushroom.

All the volunteer officers agreed they would be willing to get even closer to "ground zero" providing they were properly protected. Scientists observing the current test series in Nevada said a man would be safe in eight-foot trenches a mile from the center of a nuclear blast similar in size to those now being exploded.

The decision to remain a mile and a half from the steel-tower on which the nuclear device was set off was made by the officers themselves, according to Brig. Gen. William C. Bullock, commander of the participating troops. By computing the blast, heat, radiation and shock each would experience, the officers decided in advance to get no closer than they did.

Originally, the trenches had been deeper, but the men made them more shallow for fear the walls would cave in.

"Every reasonable precaution was taken to avoid unnecessary and foolish risk," General Bullock said.

Reserve Act Program

The Army announced this week that its implementation of the Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1952 pertaining to indefinite term appointments of all Reserve officers is near completion.

The Act provides that all future appointments of Reserve officers be for an indefinite term, and that all Reserve officers holding five-year term appointments be given an opportunity to agree in writing to have current appointments continued for an indefinite term. All eligible officers have been tendered the new indefinite term appointments and their replies are now being processed.

The Army pointed out that many of the five-year term appointments are now in an extended status until 1 April, 1953 by authority of the Presidential Emergency Powers Continuation Act. Others will remain in effect until the end of the five-year period prescribed in the commission. If not exchanged for the new appointments, all such appointments will lapse under the conditions stated, and the officers no longer will be members of the Army Reserve. This will include those who declined the new appointments or failed to respond to communications tendering indefinite term appointments.

Officers whose appointments will be terminated 1 April also include those who served as Army of the United States officers during World War II and who, upon their release from active duty, did not apply for corresponding commissions in the Army Reserve. These AUS commissions, like those in the Reserve, have remained in effect during past years because they had been tendered for the "period of war plus six months."

Any officer who for any reason has not been given an opportunity to exchange a previous commission for the new indefinite term appointment should immediately contact the Chief of Military District in which he resides to have his Reserve status verified.

MAJ. RAYMOND E. EVANS, an F-86 Sabrejet pilot with the 4th Fighter Interceptor Wing in Korea, shared credit for the destruction of a MIG-15, Friday, 13 March. His tally came on a day when Sabrejet pilots, patrolling MIG Alley, shot down six MIG's, probably destroyed one and damaged one other. Since the first MIG-15 was shot down in November, 1950, Far East Air Forces aircraft have destroyed more than 620 of these swept-wing enemy jets.

Draft Cuts Not "If" But "Most" Possible

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson told a press conference late last week that draft calls would be reduced "if possible."

A study of monthly induction rates two years ago indicates that this statement could be amended to indicate that draft cuts must be seen as "most possible" unless the strength of the Armed Forces goes up.

Mr. Wilson said military strength will go down.

The current monthly induction rate is 53,000 men and all of them are going to the Army. The Marine Corps, however, has indicated that Selective Service may be necessary to fill its ranks beginning this summer.

In order to understand why a cut in draft calls is likely, it is necessary to examine the induction rate two years ago, for under Selective Service men are obligated to serve 24 months.

Thus, it is significant to note that the draft call for April 1951, originally set at 80,000 for the Army, was revised downward, so that actually only 40,000 were taken. The May 1951 call originally was 60,000, but was reduced to 40,000.

It was reported at that time that enlistment rates were higher than expected; casualties, lower.

Then came months of very low draft calls—the real reason why it is going to be possible to reduce draft calls either late in this fiscal year or early in the new fiscal year.

In June 1951, the Army received only 20,000 men through Selective Service, 15,000 in July, 22,000 in August, and then upward to 28,000 in September and 41,000 in October.

Because of the low draft calls, it is easily seen that the draft for the corresponding months of 1953 can be reduced from the present level of 53,000 per month and still maintain the strength of the Army.

In order that requests to Selective Service and the impact of inductions on troop training, rotation and replacement programs will be kept on as even a level as possible, the Defense Department undoubtedly will try in the next fiscal year to stabilize draft calls at about the same figure each month, if possible.

Critical dislocations were created as a result of the "boom or bust" inductions since Korea which went as high as 80,000 per month and as low as 10,000 (June 1952).

The chances are, on the basis of analysis of earlier calls, that barring any major change in the military situation draft calls for fiscal '54 will be from 15,000 to 20,000 lower than the current rate for the Army, although the net drop will be less if the Marine Corps finds it necessary to use Selective Service again.

Defense Dept. Launches New Manpower Study

Exactly one month to the day after the Sarnoff Commission on Manpower Utilization submitted its finding to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, including a recommendation for a 10 per cent cut in strength, the Defense chief ordered a Special Project to review tables of organization and equipment in the Armed Forces.

Secretary Wilson charged Assistant Secretary of Defense John A. Hannah with responsibility for the new inquiry. Secretary Wilson said a Project Director should be appointed to report to Dr. Hannah.

Named Project Director by Dr. Hannah was Maj. Gen. Dewitt Peck, USMC-Ret., whose appointment as Deputy to Mr. Ralph Sollott, Director of the Defense Department Office of Manpower Utilization, was reported in the 7 March issue of THE JOURNAL.

It is interesting to note that the technical director of the Sarnoff Commission was also a Marine Corps General officer, Maj. Gen. Merrill B. Twining, who was hospitalized during the early phase of the Commission's work.

After the Sarnoff Commission submitted its surprise report, THE JOURNAL pointed out (7 March) that the findings did not satisfy a requirement of the 1953 Appropriations Act for recommendations by the Defense Secretary of specific changes in tables of organization and equipment.

Mr. Wilson, in his directive of 18 March establishing the new Special Project manpower survey, makes reference to Section 640 of the Appropriations Act (Public Law 488).

Here is the complete text of Mr. Wilson's directive:

Memorandum for Secretaries of the Military Departments, Assistant Secretaries of Defense, Joint Chiefs of Staff, Chairmen of Boards, Councils and Committees, OSD, Directors of Offices, OSD.

Subject: Special Project to Review Tables of Organization and Similar Manning Authorizations and Tables of Equipment in the Armed Services.

Background

Section 640 of Public Law 488 (Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1953) states—

"The Secretary of Defense is hereby directed to submit revised tables of organization and tables of equipment of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps to the Congress, together with recommendations for decreasing the number of personnel positions, clerical positions, supply positions, and other administrative positions so that the combat effectiveness of our Armed Forces may be improved."

In order to assist the Secretary of Defense in carrying out this directive the Citizens Advisory Commission on Manpower Utilization in the Armed Services was established by DOD Directive Number 5120.7 of 22 October 1952. After several months of consideration, the Commission submitted a report to the Secretary of Defense. Although the report contained some useful recommendations, it did not provide the Secretary the detailed information whereby he could report compliance to the Congress.

A decision has been made that the work directed by Section 640 will be accomplished by the Military Departments under the direction of the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

Discussion of the Problem

Prior to the Korean hostilities, the Armed Forces were geared to manning for only two situations—peace or war. Now we are faced with an unprecedented situation which is neither peace nor war, but something in between. Further, this state of partial mobilization may last for a considerable time. At least part of the criticism by the Congress and the public in general regarding use of military personnel today is based on opinions that our manpower policies and standards are not sufficiently geared to the current situation.

Recognizing that there may be some basis for these criticisms, we must take all reasonable steps to see that manpower requirements and manpower utilization are based on the current situation rather than on a full mobilization or war condition. And further, that our practices are consistent with the view that this period of tension may continue for an indefinite period. The expensiveness of the defense effort in money and manpower requires that each individual on active duty make a definite and direct contribution to that effort and that we do not consume resources today that we may need more in the future. We must keep clearly in mind the relative values of the things we do now in relation to our primary missions. All tables of organization and similar manning authorizations and tables of equipment should be reexamined in light of the current situation.

Organization and Responsibilities for Review of Tables of Organization and Tables of Equipment

The Military Departments will conduct a review of all tables of organization and similar manning authorization documents and tables of equipment, and submit recommendations to reduce the number of personnel required on support and administrative type work during the period of partial mobilization.

The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower and Personnel) will establish a Special Project to direct and coordinate this review and submit recommendations. The Assistant Secretary will appoint a Project Director who will report to him. The staff of the Citizens Advisory Commission will be made available to the Project Director.

All Departments and Agencies within the Department of Defense are requested to provide the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower and Personnel) such information and assistance as may be required to accomplish expeditiously the objective of this Special Project.

Service Secretaries Prepare Views On Survivor Benefits Plan For SecDef

The Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force, it was reported this week, are expected to submit their views and recommendations on the proposed Survivor Benefits Plan to the Secretary of Defense next month.

Additionally, the Defense Secretary will receive comments from the Secretaries of Treasury and Commerce and the Federal Security Administrator.

The plan, reported in detail in recent issues of THE JOURNAL, would make sweeping changes in present laws pertaining to payments to survivors of those who die in service.

Meantime, it has been ascertained that the same Committee which worked up the plan, also studied in detail the problem of benefits for survivors of those who die while in retired status.

At the present time, a bill H. R. 2521 is pending in Congress on this subject. It was introduced by Representative W. Sterling Cole (R-N.Y.) and would permit members of the Armed Forces to elect certain contingency options to provide benefits for dependents after death of the serviceman.

There are reports also that a bill has been prepared by the Defense Department relating to survivor benefits for those who die while in retired status.

In the past, suggested legislation has included as a major proviso a contributory plan and undoubtedly the new legislation also stipulates that deductions would be made from military pay to finance the program.

The text of Representative Cole's bill follows:

To permit members of the Armed Forces to elect certain contingency options, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Uniformed Services Contingency Option Act."

Sec. 2. As used in this Act—

(a) The term "Armed Forces" means the Army of the United States, Navy, Air Force of the United States, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and all regular and reserve components thereof.

(b) The term "member" means a commissioned officer, commissioned warrant officer, warrant officer, nurse, flight officer, or a person in an enlisted grade, of any of the Armed Forces and a person entitled to retirement pay in the Fleet Reserve or Fleet Marine Corps Reserve with credit for sixteen or more years of naval service.

(c) The term "active member" means a member on the active list of a regular or reserve component of an armed force.

(d) The term "retired member" means a member or former member of an armed force, who is or has been awarded retired or retirement pay as a result of service in one of the Armed Forces.

(e) The term "widow" includes a widow and refers only to the spouse at the date of retirement of an active member or to the spouse at the effective date of this Act in the case of a retired member at the effective date of this Act.

(f) The term "child" means a legitimate child, a stepchild in fact dependent upon the member for support, or a legally adopted child, who is under eighteen years of age and unmarried, and refers only to an active member's child who was born and is living at the date of retirement of the active member or to a retired member's child who was born and is living at the effective date of this Act in the case of a retired member at the effective date of the Act.

Sec. 3. (a) An active member may elect, prior to the completion of eighteen years of service which is creditable in the computation of active-duty pay in the armed force of which he is a member, to receive a reduced amount of any retired pay which may be awarded him as the result of service in his armed force in order to provide one or more of the annuities specified in section 4, payable after his death in a retired status to his widow, child, or children, if such widow, child, or children were living at the date of his retirement. Where the active member is awarded retired pay by his armed force for physical disability prior to the completion of the eighteen years of service, the election may be made at the time of retirement. An active member who has heretofore completed the eighteen years of service may make this election within one hundred and twenty days after the effective date of this Act.

(b) A retired member who has heretofore been awarded retired or retirement pay by an armed force may, within one hundred and twenty days after the effective date of this Act, elect to receive a reduced amount of that retired or retirement pay in order to provide one or more of the annuities specified in section 4, payable after his death to his widow, child, or children.

(c) An election under this section once made shall thereafter be irrevocable.

Sec. 4. (a) Under the conditions set forth in section 3, an active or retired member may elect one or more of the following annuities, payable under this Act, in such amount, expressed as a percentage of the reduced amount of his retired or retirement pay, as he may specify at the time of election. Such percentage shall be a multiple of 5 per centum but not in excess of 50 per centum of the reduced amount of his retired or retirement pay.

(A) An annuity payable to his widow, the annuity to terminate upon her death or remarriage.

(B) An annuity payable to or on behalf of his surviving child or children, the annuity to terminate when there ceases to be at least one such surviving child, unmarried and under eighteen years of age. Each payment under such annuity shall be paid in equal shares to or on behalf of the surviving children who are unmarried and under eighteen years of age at the time the payment is due.

(C) An annuity payable to his widow and surviving children, the annuity to terminate upon: the death or remarriage of the widow; or, if later, the first day of the month in which there are no surviving children of the member who are under eighteen years of age and unmarried. Such annuity shall be paid to the widow until death or remarriage, and thereafter each payment under such annuity shall be paid in equal shares to or on behalf of the surviving children under eighteen years of age and unmarried at the time the payment is due.

(D) An annuity payable under the same terms and conditions as specified in (A), (B), or (C), of this subsection, with the provision that no further deductions shall be made from the retired or retirement pay of the member commencing with the first day of the month following that in which there was no beneficiary who would have been eligible to receive, upon the death of the member, an annuity payable under the election made by him.

(b) Where an active or retired member desires to provide more than one annuity, he may elect (A) and (B) of subsection (a) of this section, with or without the provisions of (D) thereof, but in no case may the combined amounts of the annuities exceed 50 per centum of the reduced amount of his retired or retirement pay.

(c) The reduction to be made in the retired or retirement pay of an active or retired member who has made an election under section 3 shall be computed by the

Lt. Gen. Taylor Announces 8th Army Staff Changes

Appointment of Brig. Gen. George E. Martin to be Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Combat Operations and several other staff changes are announced by Eighth Army headquarters.

General Martin, Eighth Army G-3 (Operations) since July 1952, will take over operational duties held by Brig. Gen. C. W. Christenberry, Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration, Plans and Operations. General Christenberry will continue as Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration.

In another change, Col. Richard D. Meyer, Eighth Army Transportation Officer, was announced as successor to Col. W. C. Baker, Jr., Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4 (Supply). Colonel Baker's departing date and new assignment will be announced later.

Col. Hugh P. Harris, formerly commander of the 224th Infantry Regiment of the 40th Infantry Division in Korea, replaced General Martin as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3.

General Martin, 50, arrived in the Far East last July after serving with the planning team, standing group, North Atlantic Treaty Organization, in Washington, D. C. During WW II he served as Chief of Staff for the 44th and 45th Infantry Divisions, fighting through Sicily, Italy, France, Germany and Austria.

Colonel Meyer arrived in Korea in August 1952, two months after graduating from the National War College.

Eighth Army's new G-3, Colonel Harris, served as Chief of Staff for the XVIII Airborne Corps before his arrival in the Far East in July 1952.

UNITED STATES ARMY

Jungle Operations

A military exercise to prepare Army units for jungle operations will be held 4 May to 4 June in the Canal Zone under the direction of Maj. Gen. Lester J. Whitlock, Commanding General of the Army in the Caribbean area.

Participating in the maneuver, which has been dubbed Brush Bay, will be a Battalion Combat Team of the 82d Airborne Division, stationed at Ft. Bragg, N. C., elements of the 33d Infantry Regiment, the 45th Reconnaissance Battalion and the 370th Engineer Amphibious Support Regiment, all of which are stationed in Panama.

The North Carolina unit will be transported to Panama by the Air Force Tactical Air Command. However, no planes will be used in the maneuver.

Working in units of both company and battalion sizes, the troops will be trained in the elementary fact of jungle survival, construction of shelters and emplacements, and the maintenance of weapons and equipment. Instruction also will be given in the tactics and techniques peculiar to jungle combat.

Slate Warrant Promotions

The first promotions of W-1 warrant officers to W-2 are slated to be made next week.

About 1300 warrant officers are eligible for consideration by the board. The basic qualification date of rank is 6 April 1951 or earlier.

The warrant promotions, which will be followed by promotions to W-3 and W-4, will be announced in increments.

New O'Seas Return Policy

Army personnel returned to the U. S. for emergency reasons will not be sent back to their overseas stations, if they have less than nine months to serve on active duty.

Exception to the new policy is where dependents of the individual are in an overseas command. In such instances personnel concerned will be returned to their overseas posts in order to rejoin their families for subsequent normal return to the United States.

Personnel returned to this country for purposes of morale or ordinary leave, as well as military escorts on temporary duty, are not affected by this policy. They will be returned to their permanent stations overseas.

DC Col. to BG Post

Col. George F. Jeffcott, DC, USA, has been named Assistant Chief of the Dental Division in the Office of the Army Surgeon General to replace Brig. Gen. Egbert W. Cowan, named Director of Dental Activities at Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

Colonel Jeffcott was director of the Dental Standards Branch of the Division since January 1952. He will be succeeded by Col. Clare T. Budge, who came to the Dental Division in February from Fitzsimons Army Hospital, Denver, Colo.

Comptroller Branch Chief

Lt. Col. Howard C. Aylesworth has been named Chief of the program review and analysis Branch, USAREUR Comptroller. He replaces Lt. Col. Jerome F. Lieblich, who has been reassigned to the 2d Armored Division.

Guard Officers to Attend AWC

Selected Army National Guard officers will attend the 42-week course at the Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., Maj. Gen. Earl T. Ricks, Acting Chief of the National Guard Bureau, has announced.

AF Guided Missile Tng.

Additional spaces for a year's Guided Missiles training in the top U. S. missile-producing industries are open to qualified USAF Officers

The USAF Institute of Technology at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, is offering the program in an effort to fill an Air Force need for officer specialists in the Guided Missiles field. The training will be given in a two-phase program: (1) Operational phase — testing-firing-evaluation; (2) Engineering and research and development phase. Each individual's eventual assignment will dictate which of these phases will be emphasized in his training.

A master's degree in electrical, mechanical or aeronautical engineering is a desirable prerequisite for the course. However, officers possessing a bachelor's degree in those fields or USAF Institute of Technology engineering science graduates may be accepted if they have experience in electronics, radar, guided missiles or allied work. Both regular and career reserve officers are eligible for this training.

Interested officers should initiate a request for evaluation as outlined in AF Regulation 53-11A, 5 Nov. 1952.

Trained Nurse Shortage Spurs New Program

Confronted with an acute shortage of nurses, the Army is going to accelerate the 48-week training of enlisted men and women technicians as practical nurses. Maj. Gen. George E. Armstrong, Surgeon General, reported this week.

In addition to doubling the number of courses held yearly at three Army hospitals, Brooke Army Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., will also conduct such training.

The second course for enlisted technicians at Walter Reed Army Medical Center will start on 13 April and on 13 May at the Fitzsimons Army Hospital in Denver, Colo. The third, Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco, will initiate a second course at a date to be announced.

The courses at Brooke will start in the fall.

The classes already under way began last October. Each will have the complete 48-week course in the advanced medical technician procedures.

General Armstrong, in commenting on these courses, said: "Present and anticipated acute shortages of Army nurses necessitated the training of additional enlisted personnel in selected nursing duties. The 48-week training given to our technicians is a splendid aid in alleviating the shortages."

Army OCS Phase-Outs

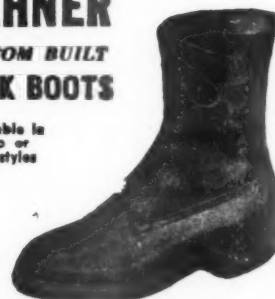

Army officials report the following phase-out schedule for five Officer Candidate Schools which are to be closed in the next four months:

Signal, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., 21 April; Antiaircraft Artillery, Ft. Bliss, Tex., 15 July; Armor, Ft. Knox, Ky., 2 May; Army General School, 8 July, and Ordnance, 19 June. These are the dates of the last graduation exercises.

After July, the male OCS training will be given at the Infantry Center, Ft. Benning, Ga.; Engineer Center, Ft. Belvoir, Va., and the Artillery Center, Ft. Sill, Okla.

New "ticker" for tanks

Rumblin' over rugged terrain . . . crushing enemy obstacles . . . surviving heavy fire—our "G.I." tanks must have powerful, dependable engines to stay "alive" in combat. That's why the Army Ordnance Corps relies on Lycoming to turn out air-cooled "tickers" for new-type tanks now in production.

Maybe you need a complete engine, or a single precision part. Maybe you have "only an idea" in the rough or blueprint stage that needs development. Or a metal product that needs precise and speedy fabrication. In any case—look to Lycoming! Lycoming has a long-tested reputation for meeting the most exacting and diverse metal-working requirements, both industrial and military. Whatever your problem—look to Lycoming!

Lycoming's wealth of creative engineering ability, its 2½ million square feet of floor space, its 6,000-plus machine tools stand ready to serve your needs.

"MIGHTY MITE"—A helicopter lands one of the Marine Corps' new, 1500-pound, multi-purpose vehicles at Quantico, Va., during a demonstration in which the "Mighty Mite" plowed through deep mud, skimmed up an 80-degree incline, crossed a rough stretch of corduroy-road at high speed, and even ran circles on three wheels. The powerful, lightweight utility vehicle also was used to lay wire, haul multiple rocket launchers and a recoilless rifle, and to evacuate "wounded." Lt. Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Commandant of the Marine Corps Schools, said the vehicle is an important development in the Corps' attempt to find better ways to land combat forces by helicopter. Ten of the vehicles are being tested at Quantico.

Heads MAG-24

Leader of the first group of Marines to bomb Japan during World War II. Col. William A. Millington recently assumed command of Marine Aircraft Group-24 of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing at Cherry Point, N. C. He succeeded Col. E. W. Johnston, who took over new duties as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, of the Air Station.

Reopen USMC Integrations

The Marine Corps has reopened its officer integration program for officers in the grade of lieutenant whose date of original commission is subsequent to 2 Dec. 1951 and prior to 1 May 1953.

Headquarters said requirements and procedures for making application are generally the same as those outlined in Marine Corps Memorandum 32-52, except that age eligibility will be computed as of 30 June 1953.

At the same time it was announced that interview boards have been eliminated and replaced by an informal interview to be conducted by the commanding officer. This interview is designed to assist the CO in formulating a recommendation regarding the applicant's suitability for appointment in the Regular Marine Corps.

After applications are received by HQMC, arrangements will be made for the administration of officer selection tests. The deadline for forwarding applications is 1 May 1953.

Headquarters said any former Reserve officer commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Regular Marine Corps during calendar 1951, 1952, and 1953 "will be restored to the lineal position he would hold had he integrated under this program."

Missouri Skipper Dead

Capt. Warner R. Edsall, Commanding Officer of the battleship Missouri, died on 26 March of a heart attack. The Navy said he was at the con of his ship, then entering a Far Eastern harbor, when death took place (see obituary column).

Captain Edsall, who had been in command of the Mighty Mo since last September, will be succeeded by Capt. Robert Brodie, now assigned to the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

New Books Tell About Two Marine Campaigns

Two new Marine Corps publications, "The Campaign on New Britain" and "Marines in the Central Solomons," are being distributed free to Purple Heart veterans of the two campaigns.

"The Campaign on New Britain" covers the operations of the First Marine Division and the Twelfth Defense Battalion in the Cape Gloucester and Talasia Regions of New Britain in the crucial campaign to isolate Rabaul. The 220-page monograph was written by Lt. Col. Frank O. Hough and Maj. John A. Crown.

"Marines in the Central Solomons" is the story of the fight on the New Georgia group of Islands in the summer of 1943. As this was predominately an Army operation, the monograph describes only the activities of the Marines' First Raider Battalion, Fourth and Ninth Defense Battalions and elements of the Tenth and Eleventh Defense Battalions. It was written by Maj. John N. Rentz and contains 186 pages.

Men who won the Purple Heart in these two campaigns may obtain either or both of the books by writing to Headquarters Marine Corps (Code AO3D), Washington 25, D. C.

Others who desire copies may purchase them from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. "The Campaign on New Britain" (catalog number D214.2:N42B) sells for $3.75; "Marines in the Central Solomons" (catalog D214.2:SO4), sells for $2.75.

New HQMC Press Officer

Lt. Col. Robert Barry, a former Washington correspondent for The Philadelphia Inquirer, has reported for duty at Headquarters Marine Corps as press officer in the Division of Public Information. He succeeds Maj. John L. Hampton, press officer since 1 May 1950, who is being detached for similar duty at Headquarters, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific.

Colonel Barry, who is on military leave from The Inquirer, has had a long newspaper career which included six years as lecturer on journalistic subjects at the University of Pennsylvania. In World War II, he was trained in air control and went overseas with VMF(N) 531, the Marines' first night fighter squadron. After the Solomon Islands were secured he returned to teach at the Naval Radar Training School, St. Simons Island, Ga. He wears the Bronze Star Medal with combat "V."

Commands HMR-363

Lt. Col. R. R. Ayers, USMC, is the new Commanding Officer of HMR-363 at the Marine Corps Air Facility, Santa Ana, Calif. Formerly he was Group Operations Officer of MAG-36.

New executive officer of HMR-363 is Maj. Dwain L. Langel.

mighty mite of electronics

Increasingly you hear of an amazing electronic device—the transistor. Because of this growing interest, RCA—a pioneer in its development for practical use in electronics—answers some basic questions:

Q: What is a transistor?

A: The transistor consists of a particle of the metal germanium imbedded in a plastic shell about the size of a kernel of corn. It controls electrons in solids in much the same way that the electron tube handles electrons in a vacuum. But transistors are not interchangeable with tubes in the sense that a tube can be removed from a radio or television set and a transistor substituted. New circuits as well as new components are needed.

Q: What is germanium?

A: Germanium is a metal midway between gold and platinum in cost, but a penny or two will buy enough for a transistor. Germanium is a basic element found in coal and certain ores. When painstakingly prepared, it has unusual electrical characteristics which enable a transistor to detect, amplify, and oscillate as does an electron tube.

Q: What are the advantages of transistors?

A: Transistors have no heated filament, require no warm-up period, and use very little power. They are rugged, shock-resistant and unaffected by dampness. They have long life. These basic qualities offer great opportunities for the miniaturization, simplification, and refinement of many types of electronic equipment.

Q: What is the present status of transistors?

A: There are a number of types of transistors, most of them still in development. RCA has demonstrated to 200 electronics firms—plus Armed Forces representatives—how transistors could be used in many different applications.

Q: What will be the transistor's future uses?

A: To indicate future applications, RCA has demonstrated experimental transistorized amplifiers, phonographs, radio receivers (AM, FM, and automobile), transmitters, electronic and a number of television circuits. Because of its physical characteristics, the transistor qualifies superbly for use in lightweight, portable instruments.

RCA scientists, research men and engineers, aided by increased laboratory facilities, have intensified their work in the field of transistors. The multiplicity of new applications in both military and commercial fields is being studied. Already the transistor gives evidence that it will extend the base of the electronics art into new fields of science, commerce and industry. Such pioneering assures finer performance from any product or service trade-marked RCA and RCA Victor.

Gen. Maude Commands ARDC Research Center

Maj. Gen. Raymond C. Maude, USAF, formerly Director of Air Force Communications, has assumed command of the Air Force Cambridge Research Center at Cambridge, Mass., according to an announcement by Lt. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, commanding general of the Air Research and Development Command, Baltimore, Md.

Recently appointed deputy commanding general of the Air Force Cambridge Research Center, General Maude succeeded Maj. Gen. James F. Phillips as commanding general of the Center on 16 March. General Phillips is retiring from active duty after 30 years of continuous service with the Army and Air Force.

The Air Force Cambridge Research Center, one of nine research, development and testing centers of the Air Research and Development Command, conducts a broad program of research in electronics, geophysics, and radio chemistry and radio biology designed to establish basic principles in these fields and to advance their military application.

Appointed Director of Air Force Communications in the summer of 1951, General Maude has guided U. S. Air Force communication-electronics activities through a period of intensive expansion.

General Maude was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy and commissioned a second lieutenant in the Signal Corps in 1926. A year later he received his Master of Science degree at Yale University.

Maj. Gen. Maude

During WWII, General Maude served in Europe as communications officer of the Ninth Bomber Command and later as director of communications for the 29th Tactical Air Command. In August, 1945, he was named communications officer of the U. S. Air Forces in Europe.

7000 AF Promotions Scheduled Next Week

The Air Force will promote about 7000 first lieutenants and captains to temporary captain and major ranks on or about 1 April and will follow within two weeks with additional promotions to major and advancements to lieutenant colonel and colonel.

The 1 April promotions will include all those selected for captain. Advancements to this rank will be announced by major commands.

The promotions to major, lieutenant colonel and colonel will be released at USAF Headquarters, according to present plans.

The Air Force said that the 1 April promotions would represent about 60 per cent of those selected for major.

It was stated that when the first promotions are announced, recommended lists for those to be promoted to major at a later date will be made available also. Some of these remaining promotions will be made about 15 April.

The Air Force emphasized that all officers selected for promotion to each grade will have the same date of rank regardless of when the actual promotions are made.

The first promotions to colonel and lieutenant colonel are scheduled for mid-April also, along with the simultaneous announcement of officers selected for future promotion to those grades.

The Air Force added that those who must be carried on recommended lists beyond 30 June because of restrictions on the number of officers above the rank of captain contained in Public Law 7—the replacement for the Davis Amendment—will be promoted early in fiscal year 1954.

U. S. AIR FORCE

75,000 Airmen Promotions

The Air Force has authorized almost 75,000 airmen promotions for March and April.

Permanent party promotions will be made as follows: 1040 to master sergeant, 2540 to technical sergeant, 12,000 to staff sergeant, 26,000 to airman first class and 30,400 to airman second class.

Student promotions will be made as follows: 91 to staff sergeant, 87 to airman first class, and 1621 to airman second class.

These promotions are approximately the same number authorized for January-February, the Air Force said.

In announcing the new quotas, USAF Headquarters reported that in career fields in which temporary overages exist, the provisions of paragraph 10b AFR 39-29 are waived for promotion to grade of airman second class and airman first class.

Classification and time-in-grade requirements will not be waived, however, the Air Force said.

AF Says Re-Up Losses May Cost Qtr. Billion

THE JOURNAL's editorial contention in the issue of 14 Feb. that the slump in reenlistments among career military personnel is costing the Government millions of dollars is fortified with the disclosure that the Air Force in fiscal years 1953, '54 and '55 estimates that failure to reenlist will result in loss of about 204,000 airmen.

The per-capita training cost of an airman is placed at $1,361.75. This means that the loss in trained personnel will mean an expenditure of about $278,000,000.

The Air Force says that the greater part of the projected loss will come from among airmen who enlisted at the beginning of the Korean war and who were not career motivated.

Air Force personnel officers have been told that unless a concerted reenlistment program is laid down at each echelon of command "with ever-increasing emphasis," the Air Force faces a serious loss of trained airmen.

According to Air Force officials in Washington, "there are few programs of equal importance" to the reenlistment campaign.

"Major commanders should recognize that this is a grass-roots problem, as well as a high-level one, which requires continuing vigilance," the statement concluded.

Brig. Gen. Grubbs Resigns

Brig. Gen. Sydney D. Grubbs, USAF, has resigned his commission. An Air Force spokesman indicated it was because of "personal problems which he could not resolve if he remained in the service." He has been assigned to Strategic Air Command Headquarters.

The resignation, effective 31 March, was approved by Harold E. Talbott, Secretary of the Air Force, after "considering all factors in light of the best interests of the government and secondarily of the individual," the spokesman added.

General Grubbs was graduated from West Point in 1933 and served 32 months in the China-Burma-India theatre during WWII, during which he flew 85 combat missions.

After the war, he was assigned to Randolph Field in 1945 as a member of the Regular Army Officers' Screening Board. Less than a year later, he went to Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala., to assist in organizing the Air War College. He served as secretary of the college from August 1946 to April 1948 when he was appointed chief of staff of the Air University at Maxwell. In June of that year, he became commander of Maxwell Field and the 3800th Air University Wing at that station. Six months later, he assumed command of Headquarters Command at Bolling AFB, Washington, D. C.

General Grubbs was appointed Special Assistant to the Commanding General of the Second Air Force at Barksdale AFB, La., in October 1950, the year in which he was promoted to the temporary rank of brigadier general. The following December, he assumed command of the 55th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing at Ramey AFB, Puerto Rico. He held that post until his selection in February 1952 as CG of the 38th Air Division, Hunter AFB, Ga.

Aviation Medical Experts Will Switch Assignments

Brig. Gen. Otis O. Benson, jr., MC, USAF, and Brig. Gen. Edward J. Kendrick, MC, USAF, both widely known authorities on aviation medicine, will switch assignments about 1 May.

Brig. Gen. Benson

General Benson is Commandant of the USAF School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph AFB, Tex., and General Kendrick is Director of Medical Staffing and Education in the office of the Air Surgeon General at the Pentagon.

Both officers transferred in July 1949 from the Army Medical Corps to the newly organized Air Force Medical Service and both have been in their present assignments since that time.

General Benson was graduated from the School of Aviation Medicine in 1932 and General Kendrick in 1934.

Similarly, General Benson commanded the Aero-Medical Laboratory at Wright Field, Ohio, from 1940 to 1943 and General Kendrick from 1946 until June 1949.

General Benson and General Kendrick are well known both in military and civilian aviation medicine circles throughout the world.

After service from 1945 to 1948 in the Office of the Air Surgeon at Washington, D. C., General Benson attended the National War College before his assignment as commandant of the School of Aviation Medicine.

Armed Forces Donations To Red Cross on Increase

Men and women in all branches of Services in the Armed Forces in Korea are contributing more generously to the Red Cross this year than last. They have given $124,867 as of 15 March, the American National Red Cross announced.

Contributions through Red Cross Field Directors in the entire Far East Theater have reached the $203,740 mark, not including donations from men on ships at sea. Money donated so far this year is almost double the $109,492 figure of last year on 20 March, five days after this present report.

Only at the halfway mark, already participation is 50% by the Army, 40% by the Air Force, and 30% by the Navy. Seeing first hand the work of the American Red Cross overseas, all Services are recognizing the help they are being given. The Red Cross reports that the Army so far has made donations totaling $162,964, the Navy has given $11,921, not including the ships at sea, while the Air Force has contributed $28,855.

Total Army contributions in Korea have reached $107,937. From all units of Eighth Army in Korea, excluding the 1st Marine Division, has come $96,078, and from the Korean Communications Zone there has been $11,859 donated. The 1st Marine Division has given $8,921 and the 5th Air Force in Korea has donated $8,009.

All the services in Japan have given $70,849, from Okinawa $5,400, and from the Philippines has come $2,624.

Through field directors, skilled hospital workers, Home Service workers in communities at home, and the blood program for servicemen, the Red Cross is providing vital services to Americans on the battlefields of Korea today.

MAJ. GEN. ROY H. LYNN (center), new commander of the Japan Air Defense Force, arrived at Tokyo International Airport (Haneda) 13 March en route from the United States to the southern Japan headquarters of JADF. Greeting him at the Tokyo landing were General O. P. Weyland (left), commanding general, Far East Air Forces, and Brig. Gen. Harold W. Grant, vice commander, JADF. General Lynn conferred briefly with General Weyland and then flew immediately to his headquarters.

AF Summarizes Rules For Authorized Uniform Wear

The following is a summary of information contained in directives which have been sent by USAF Headquarters to major commands pertaining to wearing of authorized uniforms.

All airmen may wear Army-type uniforms until further notice, but officers no longer are permitted to wear Army-type garb.

Air Force-type optional summer uniforms in Army tan shade 61 may be worn until 1 Oct. 1953, but after that all optional summer wool uniforms must be AF tan shade 193.

Any cotton material, shade 1 shirt, or the new 4-ounce poplin tan, shade 505 shirt, may be worn as undergarments with optional wool, shade 193 summer coat or jacket until 1 Oct. 1953. Thereafter, only the undergarment shirt, shade 505, may be worn. Shade 505 summer shirt is identical in design to the Oxford weave, blue shade 126, winter undergarment shirt.

The Air Force said the following are authorized summer uniform combinations:

1. Officers and airmen may wear shade 1, khaki, poplin or broadcloth shirts as outer garments with shade 1 khaki trousers. Shirts worn by officers must have two pockets and shoulder loops.

2. Officers and airmen may wear khaki, poplin or broadcloth shirts as outer garments with Army tan, shade 61, optional wool trousers. Shirts worn by officers and airmen must have two pockets and shoulder loops (Shade 61 is not authorized after 31 Oct. 1953).

3. Only tan, shade 193, wool shirts (tropical worsted or gabardine) are authorized for wear as outer garments with tan shade 193 optional wool trousers. Shirt must be two-pocket, military type, with shoulder loops.

4. In addition to all-wool materials in optional summer uniforms, the following synthetic combinations are also authorized in tropical worsted weave only: 50 per cent wool and 50 per cent dacron; or 50 per cent dacron and 50 per cent viscose rayon. These combinations are not authorized in winter blue uniform materials.

5. The material of the coat or jacket, when worn, must match that of the trousers. The Air Force stressed that the following are UNAUTHORIZED uniform combinations:

a. Shirt of cotton material with trousers, tan, shade 193, tropical worsted or gabardine.

b. Combinations other than those mentioned above and in pertinent AF Regulations and AF Letters.

c. Officers are not authorized to wear summer shirt-trouser uniform when outside duty station, except while en route to and from work. Coat must be worn at off-base public places.

Airmen Transient Quarters

Air Force Headquarters is disturbed because of complaints received from airmen on flying status that transient quarters are not satisfactory.

These complaints report instances of dirty quarters, insufficient bedding, and lack of transportation.

It was stated that at one base airmen had to turn in their bedding at 0600 regardless of the hour of their arrival or the number of days they were to remain at the base on temporary duty.

AFR 76-5, 5 Aug. 1948, spells out the minimum accommodations that are to be provided for transient personnel.

Fractional Days

In decision B-11895, the Comptroller General has ruled that:

"When enlisted members of the armed services are in travel status and entitled to a per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence for a portion of a day, the daily basic allowance for subsistence authorized to be paid enlisted members who are permitted to mess separately may be prorated for the remaining portion of such day, provided such prorating is regulated by appropriate administrative regulations fixing reasonable divisions of a day."

"There could be no greater calamity to the cause of peace and the confidence of small nations in following the paths we believe to be the straight ones, than premature, unilateral dissipation of our strength to the point where we would have to abandon our sworn commitments and stand helpless to defend the right."
—GENERAL DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, 1946.

Authority and Responsibility. Since the earliest days of organized military forces it has been an accepted principle that authority must accompany responsibility — when a commander is ordered to achieve certain objectives, he must at the same time be given the authority to issue orders and to enforce compliance.

However, today there has grown up a system by which the military leaders are being held responsible in the public eye for situations in which they did not have the authority. On the opposite page is an article describing how the military leadership of the Army is being pictured as either not having asked for enough money or having mismanaged the funds given them for the procurement of ammunition to carry on the war in Korea. Yet, because the Chief of Staff of the Army, General J. Lawton Collins, is a loyal and devoted member of the Department of Defense team, the facts have not been presented fully to the Committee and the public. It has been established that the Army commander in Korea did not at all times have as much ammunition as he would like to have had. It has also been established that Congress approved the full budget request for ammunition. The inference has been, therefore, that the Army did not ask for enough money. This, however, is short-cut reasoning. Congress should know that neither the Army nor its Chief of Staff has the authority to ask for funds. The Chief of Staff merely submits his estimates of the Army's money needs to his civilian chiefs in the Department of the Army. It is a long road from there to Congress. The estimates must be reviewed by the Secretary of the Army and his civilian assistants. They then go on to the Department of Defense level where further reductions may be made before submission to the Bureau of the Budget for final revision and approval as the Administration's official recommendations. The official figure must then be supported by all subordinate officials, including the Chief of Staff of the Army. General Collins' conscientious adherence to the principle that the President's budget is his budget, together with the absence of any comprehensive and forthright explanation from the civilian leaders, has put him in the position of accepting responsibility for whatever shortages may have existed in the ammunition reserve.

In this instance, the Committee should find out what the military's original recommendations were and what happened to them in the system of processing the budget. It has been announced that the Senate Subcommittee will call Former Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett and Former Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, jr., to testify next week. Perhaps through them the facts may be made known and General Collins and his military staff will not be held publicly responsible for a situation over which they did not have commensurate authority.

Cut Medical Care. The forthcoming reduction in the number of medical officers to be maintained on active duty will most likely have its strongest effect in a further cut-back on the amount of care that can be given to the families of Service personnel.

Medical field standards and allotment of doctors for Korea will not be allowed to slacken. The record there is truly outstanding and must be maintained. However, to do this with a smaller

Care of Dependents

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I wish to thank you very much for the story and editorial, appearing in your 21 March 1953 issue, relating to the critical situation in regard to medical care of Navy dependents and retired personnel in the Long Beach-Orange County area of California.

This matter is truly a serious one, and I appreciate every bit of help I can get in seeing that it is corrected.

I have initiated steps with the Secretary of Defense directly to investigate delay in construction of the Naval Hospital, as well as the seriousness of the lack of doctors at the present Dependency Dispensary.

If any information comes to your hands, that you feel would be helpful in this cause, I would much appreciate your passing it along to me.

Retired Officer's Widow

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Speaking as a widow of a Regular Army Officer who died after retirement, I would like to protest the injustice of the pension allowance allotted me. After 30 years and more of service, my husband died very suddenly of a heart condition the doctors claim cannot be detected as yet by any tests but is an accumulation of years of work and worry. Because my husband had no medical record, due to his old-fashioned dislike of "haunting the hospital wards," he was penalized upon retirement by having to pay an income tax out of his pension. Upon his death I find I am allowed only $48 per month, and that when my income, including civilian insurance, goes over $1400 per year, I lose the pension. This is not a requirement placed on those receiving the $75 pension. With $100 per month insurance, my income is very near the specified limit. If I try to take a job I will lose my pension, and if I do not, I cannot live on inflation prices. The civilian public when informed of this are shocked and do not believe it.

Surely something can and should be done to correct this unfairness. When an officer has spent his entire life in the army, it should be assumed that his death was due to causes acquired in the service. The widows of retired army men are usually past the age when it is easy for them to find employment. Also, any savings or insurance they are lucky enough to have, was saved from pay of a captain or lieutenant, for there was little promotion or rank in the older officer's career. Insurance or savings provide little protection in the present inflation. I am able to work for a few years, if I keep my health, but I will forfeit my pension if I do.

Under this same ruling comes the widows of men who died from causes for which they were not retired on the medical record. Surely a man who spends his life in the military service is due better recognition than this.

Sincerely,
A COLONEL'S WIDOW

PX's Again

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The letter in your 7 March issue entitled "Change PX System," by Colonel, Infantry, was not only timely but hit the nail on the head.

For someone sure got sold a bill of goods when they established this present Post Exchange Service for Policy Council, recently issued a plea that the questions as to the doctors draft and the continuation of dependent care be kept separate and not confused by bargaining one against the other. He further suggested that there be an independent study of dependent care by a group on which both the military and civilians as well as physicians and non-physicians be represented. Until such a study is made there should be no steps taken to reduce family care.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—

Free legal assistance for every member of the Army of the United States, and his or her dependents, is a new goal of the War Department. In cooperation with the American Bar Association, the War Department has designated the Judge Advocate General to set up a legal assistance office in every post, camp and station in continental United States and, where feasible, in overseas stations.

50 Years Ago—

With two coaling stations which the Navy Department has decided to establish in the Aleutian Islands, the Navy will still further strengthen its supports in the Pacific Ocean. The proposed stations will afford a foothold in the north Pacific corresponding to those which have been acquired farther south in Hawaii and Samoa, and these, together with the station at Guam, complete a chain of outposts in the Pacific capable of supporting the Navy in any emergency.

85 Years Ago—

Orders have been issued for the abandonment of the line of forts protecting the Powder Hill country, and guarding the famous Black Hill country, embracing Forts Reno, Phil Kearny and G. F. Smith. This is but carrying out General Sherman's promises to the Sioux at North Platte. In future, then, the Powder-river road will be abandoned, and emigrants have now only the Southern route left.

the Army and Air Force. Sure, I'll admit there were good and bad exchanges under the old system, depending on the PX officer, the steward, and the local PX council, to say nothing about who may be the CO.; but at least the profits, if there were any, remained in the post, the mark-up or mark-down was not controlled by some group in NYC, and the overhead was not as great, for you did not have to operate with a force of civilian employees like Macy's Dept. store. Then, too, the PX didn't carry everything in stock from automobiles to glass eyes, but there was, as a general rule, whereby you could get an order from the PX officer to take to a local dealer off the post and buy an auto tire, baby crib, or lawn mower, at a reduction in price, and you'd pay the Post Exchange.

Thinking of the good, old days of 25 or 30 years ago brings to mind the old-style commissary, before it was operated on the chain grocery store style, when the commissary sergeant and four to six soldiers ran the whole show; the commissary officer had a half-dozen other jobs in addition to being the commissary officer, everyone ate well and cheap, your bread was in a brown paper bag, your meat handed you in a piece of butcher paper, with no fancy cuts. Cleaning and preserving material was available and cheap, namely: Brooms, mops, toilet paper, lye, and soap as well as ice.

To put it another way, it was better living in the Army when a Corporal was an important rank, the "Old Man" (with the Eagle) commanded more respect from the rank and file than the Generals of today; you didn't have to go to Harvard to be eligible for G-4, and no one ever heard of a cold war.

Critical Issue Confronts Rockefeller Group

Top-level Committee on Defense Organization
Must Face The Issue of Civilian Responsibility Which Goes With Civilian Control; Ammunition Hearings Spotlight Complex Situation.

IF the Rockefeller Committee now surveying the top-level structure of the Defense Department is to do a thorough job—if it does not dodge a central problem raised in the Senate ammunition hearings—the issue of the civilian responsibility that must accompany civilian control cannot be avoided. With General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, as a member of the Committee, it must be expected that this problem will be raised; whether or not it will be resolved remains to be seen.

Careful reading of the newly released text of the Senate Armed Services Committee hearings on "Ammunition Supplies in the Far East" shows General J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, being subjected repeatedly to inquiries which he deemed it improper to answer because they were not within the area of his control or responsibility.

Thus, for example:

Senator Symington: "I think what Senator Byrd would like to know is whether or not the Department of Defense approved the request made by the Bureau of the Budget of the Congress, it was what you and what the Army felt was adequate from the standpoint of your ammunition."

General Collins: "You are putting me in a difficult position, Senator, to answer that, because of the fact that as Chief of Staff of the Army I do not submit the budgets. I have a certain part to play in their production and in their presentation, but the matter of what is approved and what is not approved within the Department of Defense in my opinion should be asked of an official of the Department of Defense and not of a military man, under our system of government."

Justification of Discussions

In effect, General Collins says, in response to the questioning, that with the delegation of civilian control goes also responsibility for the ultimate decisions made and for their justification to Congress and the nation.

The Army Chief of Staff comments that "unless you want to change the system, you cannot hold a military man responsible for changing your directives or the directives that come down to him from superior authority."

The testimony discloses the degree to which the control of the Chief of Staff has been subordinated to civilian officials. General Collins, during interrogation on ammunition procurement, told the Senators that "we are now in the field that is not immediately my responsibility, the responsibility of the Chief of Staff of the Army, because the question of procurement and of financing that part of it is not charged to my immediate responsibility, but it has been handled through—for years—the office of the Under Secretary of the Army, and by the technical services."

Notwithstanding this fact, it was General Collins, not any past or present civilian Defense leaders, who carried the brunt of the Army's testimony and who, in effect, although lacking commensurate control, was required to assume the responsibility for explaining the entire ammunition situation.

Military Control Fuzzy

If the hearings show that General Collins' control of the technical services is somewhat fuzzy, so also does the testimony indicate that the Chief of Staff's control over activities in the field needs to be clarified.

General James A. Van Fleet, the retiring former commander of the Eighth Army, quoted in his testimony from communications sent to him by General Mark W. Clark, Far East Commander, in which General Van Fleet's immediate superior tells of reports received from Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett that efforts would be taken to alleviate the ammunition situation.

There is wonder as to why Mr. Lovett should have written to General Clark.

since, although General Clark is a theater commander responsible to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, reports from him and messages to him come through the Army Chief of Staff and the Secretary of the Army.

There are indications in the testimony that this line of transmittal was circumvented.

It is interesting to note in this regard that General Collins' command control over military personnel and activities is much more restricted than that which can be exercised by the Chief of Staff of the Air Force or the Chief of Naval Operations.

New Civilian Echelons

This is a problem the Rockefeller Committee cannot escape, particularly since Unification has resulted in creation of new civilian echelons exerting control. In the matter of ammunition, beyond the Under Secretary and Secretary of Army, there are the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller), the chairman of the Munitions Board, the Deputy Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Defense—as well as the Director of the Bureau of the Budget—obviously all involved in vital decisions pertaining to the ammunition program.

It is a well-known fact to Pentagon observers that in another area, namely personnel, the Assistant Secretary of Defense in charge of manpower has exerted during recent years powerful operational control over the Services—even to the extent of restricting draft calls and enlistments, notwithstanding the fact that the calls and enlistments would have been within strength limitations prescribed by Congress.

The present strength of the Armed Services is about 3.5 million. The almost forgotten fact is that Congress, in voting approval for the 1953 Appropriations request, said that the strength should be 3.7 million men and women.

Manpower Deficit

Conceivably, Congress might want some day to know about that 200,000 deficit. The Armed Services Committees might seek to ascertain who is responsible. The best guess is that in such a situation it would be the Service chiefs who would be haled to Capitol Hill to make the explanations.

But the difficulty is that the chiefs cannot, under the restrictions of civilian control, tell the story without walking a tight rope of intricate discretion.

General Collins, for example, declined time and again to say whether the Secretary of the Army and the Secretary of Defense and then the Bureau of the Budget had approved the funds which he, as military chief of the Army, felt were necessary for ammunition.

Under persistent questioning of Senator Byrd, General Collins finally stated that he had made his proposals "on the recommendation of the staff and the analysis and the recommendation of the theater commanders, and it was more than what was finally asked of Congress. You forced me to say that. I say that reluctantly. I did not volunteer it."

The crux of General Collins' dilemma was pointed up almost at the very end of the hearings by Senator Knowland, a former member of the Armed Services Committee who now serves on the Appropriations Committee.

Senator Knowland said that the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in their responsibility to the Congress of the United States, "which is charged, under the Constitution with raising and supporting armies," should come forward "if you do not feel that the civilian heads have requested sufficient funds for the security of our nation." Senator Knowland added: "I think that the Joint Chiefs of Staff have a responsibility to at least say to Congress: 'We think, in our professional judgment, you should have had 50 per cent more ammunition; under civilian leadership, they have decided otherwise, but our recommendation was that you

French Visitors Prepared for Task

THE current visit of Rene Mayer, Premier of France, with his Foreign Minister (M. Bidault), his Finance Minister (M. Bourges-Maunoury), and his Minister for Associated States (M. Letourneau), is obviously not a casual affair. For France's needs are great, and it is agreeable to conclude that the French government is aware that France's baffling behavior has disturbed her warmest friends in America. M. Mayer can speak for his government on all problems, to be sure, but his three companions are equipped to speak with intensive knowledge on three outstanding matters.

These are, of course, (1) the protocol with which France has sought to build up for herself a favored position with regard to the European Defense Community and more particularly the European Army; (2) the perennial fiscal troubles which lie at the root of French reluctance to move ahead in certain defense matters, to the undoubted injury of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's plans; (3) the very real needs in the Far East, where it is apparent France hopes to find more American help than in the past.

M. BIDAULT has served with past governments whose eager support of the EDC was largely responsible for the early impulse it received. Thus he has a record for livelier cooperation than France has been evidencing in recent months. But he has a Gallic adaptability, too, explaining, of course, why he continues in the Mayer government which attained power by its temporary acquisition of Gaullist support. Perhaps M. Bidault can explain both the situation and the prospect in a way to influence American opinion favorably; he is a gifted man. And it is most desirable that he do so, for if France needs NATO, so most certainly does NATO need France—and a strong, willing France eager to cooperate fully with General Ridgway at SHAPE.

France's finance chief may need even larger powers of persuasion, for France's economic balances are almost as worrying as her political balance. He has had the advantage, if it be one, of seeing Britain's chancellor as a recent visitor to Washington, and of knowing that the discussions at the State and Treasury Departments were made with complete awareness of France's anxieties. France's taxation system, however, is considerably harder for us to understand than is the firm and austere tax program of Britain, and harder for M. Bourges-Maunoury to defend.

M. LETOURNEAU came at a good time, for his arrival in Washington was preceded by General Mark W. Clark's report on a visit to French Indo-China. General Clark's reported view is that, if possible, America should find a way of lending larger support to the French-Vietnam forces. By coincidence, that is the view of the French minister who will find his task eased somewhat thereby.

France's problems, separately and collectively, need sympathetic study at just this time, for the Atlantic Council meeting impends, and at that council MM. Mayer and Bidault will be pressed for considerably more NATO support than was tendered at the last meeting. It is much too early to estimate the attitude of General Eisenhower and his State and Treasury and Defense Departments, but it will at least be based, thanks to the British and French discussions, on a much more solid lot of facts than was at hand in January. M. Mayer has shown unexpected skill and a great deal of forcefulness; they were well exemplified on the day before his departure for Washington when in a space of hours he brought about acceptance of the protocols at the six-nation meeting which up to then had been deadlocked for three weeks, and thereafter arranged for a Bank of France loan to tide over a treasury crisis. He adroitly gained both victories by his reminder that without them he could not go to Washington with any confidence in success of his mission.

THE RED AVIATORS' recent violations of the East German frontier have greatly expedited the strengthening of NATO fighter-strength west of that frontier. It now develops that the 25 new Sabres, already announced as en route to the U. S. Eighty-sixth Wing (Fighter-Interceptors) at Landstuhl in the Palatinate, will be followed by 125 others. Also that other F-84-E planes are to be replaced during the summer by the new and very fast F-84F, a fighter-bomber. Also that the Canadian force will shortly supplement its initial wing of Canadian-made Sabres with a second wing of 60, looking toward the distant target-total of 300. In the over-all projected force of 9,500 tactical planes there will be the British Swift, Hunter, and Javelin, and the French Mystere, but the two American types referred to will be most in evidence.

Critical discussion of Exercises Rendezvous and New Moon, lately completed in the Mediterranean, is still on an extremely general basis, but the assembly of air, surface, and subsurface forces has led observers to speak with confidence of present NATO strength in that area, and with moderate satisfaction over the degree of integration effected. As always, in communications a great deal is still to be done.

New Moon was an air exercise, directed by Lieutenant General David M. Schlatter, U.S.A.F., commanding the Allied Air Forces, Southern Europe. Its first phase, in the western Mediterranean, employed American, British, French and Italian elements defending Toulon, Tunis, Bizerte, Bari and Pisa from simulated attack. The second phase, in the east, made use of American, British, Greek and Turkish elements.

EXERCISE RENDEZVOUS was a naval affair in the eastern Mediterranean, directed by Admiral Earl Mountbatten and employing British, Italian, Greek and Turkish naval vessels, with the U. S. Sixth Fleet operating as a fast carrier force whose striking elements were Midway, Tarawa, and Wright. The amphibian force, utilizing French, Greek and Turkish troops and a battalion of U. S. Marines, simulated a landing on "hostile" Greek soil fifty miles from Athens.

Before the Council of American States this week Secretary of State Dulles went somewhat beyond conventional requirements in urging closer cooperation by the twenty-one Pan-American nations, particularly against Communist encroachments, and giving assurance of President Eisenhower's concern with hemisphere solidarity. There have lately been decided Communist gains in Central and South America, emphasized by the past week's vigorous remarks in the general congress of the Confederation of Latin-American Workers, at Santiago, Chile. The meeting was dominated by Vincente Toledano, a Mexican communist, to a degree even greater than in previous years. The sober fact is that extremely little has been done to halt Communist advances in Latin-America.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Calling a Stretch-Out a Spade—Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson at his first Pentagon press conference told of plans to cut military manpower and money, but he declined to concede that this would mean a further "stretch-out." It is difficult, however, to see how a new stretch-out in the attainment of defense objectives can be avoided if the fiscal '54 budget is cut by billions of dollars.

Former Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett, in his farewell Pentagon report—it was dated 19 Jan.—warned that the $41.5 billion budget sent to Congress by the Truman Administration represented the "best judgment" on what was needed to attain stated goals. Mr. Lovett added that cuts in funds would mean a further stretch-out of preparedness plans.

Although Mr. Wilson adroitly dodged a concession of a new stretch-out in telling of plans for reductions in military strength and funds, the plain fact is that force level objectives which have been in effect for the past several years now are either to be revised or unattained. In short, these goals are to be stretched-out or knocked-out.

Thus, for example, the Defense Department will be something less than candid if it continues to report an objective of 21 combat-ready divisions for the Army (there are now 20) and simultaneously reduces Army strength.

Similarly, major cuts in the '54 budget and a check on planned expenditures must inevitably delay the time when the Air Force will attain its goal of 143 modern wings and when Naval Aviation will also be modernized.

These delays in the past have become recognized at the Pentagon, on Capitol Hill, and across the Nation as "stretch-outs" and Mr. Lovett freely admitted that such was the case when decisions were made, at higher levels of Government, to retard the achievement of the stated objectives.

It can be expected that such legislators as Senator Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) and Senator Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), who have made public appeals during recent weeks for the Defense Department to tell the full story of our mobilization progress, will not permit the Department's contention that funds and personnel can be cut without a "stretch-out" to go unchallenged during forthcoming action on the '54 budget.

Doctor Draft Extension—The Defense Department, which has now about 13,700 medical officers on duty compared with approximately 6200 before Korea, will ask Congress to extend the Doctor Draft Law from its expiration date on 1 July 1953 to 1 July 1955.

In addition to the increase in medical officers, the Services have expanded their dental officer strength from 2200 before Korea to 6900 and the number of veterinary officers from about 320 to 740.

Defense officials estimate that replacements will be needed in fiscal '54 for 4500 medical, 1554 dental and 139 veterinary officers and 7000 medical, 3775 dental and 194 veterinary officers in fiscal '55.

Meantime, reports are that the medical officer strength of the Armed Forces is to be considerably reduced in fiscal '54.

Some observers are speculating that the disclosure of prospective cuts in medical officer strength is aimed at insuring support from the American Medical Association for the Doctor Draft Law extension.

In recent months, certain ranking members of the American Medical Association have hinted that they do not feel doctors should be drafted to take care of military dependents.

This statement so concerned the chairman of the Armed Forces Medical Policy Council that he issued a statement in which he stressed that dependent care and the Doctor Draft Law are not related matters and should be considered separately.

The Services can certainly anticipate that during the forthcoming hearings on the Doctor Draft Law, the A.M.A. will renew its attack on the dependent care program.

Chaplain Axton Retires—Chaplain (Col.) John T. Axton, the Army's oldest chaplain in point of service will retire at Ft. Knox, Ky., 31 March, after 34½ years of duty.

Upon Chaplain Axton's retirement, he and Mrs. Axton plan to visit his mother, Mrs. John Axton, sr., 4514 Connecticut Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C., and sister, Miss Matilda Axton of the same address. Eventually, they plan to settle in the West.

Junior member of the only father-son combination to serve in the Army chaplaincy, Colonel Axton has been chief of Armored Center chaplains since 1946. His father, the late Col. John T. Axton, sr., organized the Army Chaplain Corps in its present form and served as its first chief from 1920 to 1928.

A native of Salt Lake City, Utah, Colonel Axton began the first of his 16 Army assignments when he was commissioned on 7 Nov. 1918. He was ordained into the Congregationalist ministry in 1917.

On two occasions he was stationed with his father—at the Hoboken, N. J., port of embarkation and at Fort Myer, Va., when he worked in his father's Washington office. A veteran of 26 years' service when he retired in 1928, Colonel Axton, sr., died in 1934.

His almost 35 years in the chaplaincy have taken Colonel Axton to Europe twice and to Hawaii and Panama in addition to stations in the United States. In early World War II he was wounded when, moving from Third Army, San Antonio, Tex., to the Fifteenth Army in Europe, his ship was torpedoed while sailing from England to France.

The colonel was Fifteenth Army chaplain in the Rhine campaign and later, in the occupation of Germany, before coming to Fort Knox. His successor has not been announced. Assistant Armored Center Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Morris McEldowney will be acting Armored Center chaplain.

Colonel Axton is married to the former Miss Hazel Edwards of Salt Lake City and they have a son, John T. Axton III, who is to receive his master's degree in Design from Yale University in June.

Concern For Carrier—In the wake of the new military economy drive, Navy officers are expressing concern about their prospects of getting funds to build a third Forrestal-class aircraft carrier.

The big carriers (two of which are now under construction) have caused heated debate in almost every budget hearing since 1948. A stop-work order on the first

MEMO

To Journal Readers

...SecDef Wilson's assertion that the Munitions Board is a FIFTH WHEEL surprised those present at his first press conference, since presumably this is a matter under CURRENT INQUIRY by the Rockefeller Committee. He said also that he was not in favor of a STAFF for the SecDef, another problem certainly under scrutiny.

...The Air Force estimates that about 14,600 airmen now on active duty are ELIGIBLE FOR RETIREMENT because of completion of more than 20 years service. If any large number of this veteran group should ask out the AF would be HARD HIT for skilled enlisted personnel—another reason why every effort is being made to boost NCO prestige.

...The Navy has warned its public relations officers to cut down on the number of photographers used to greet ARRIVING DIGNITARIES. "Don't greet each VIP with a barrage of flashbulbs," the Navy said. Washington told the field to avoid instances where the VIPs are greeted by "A CONSTANT TATTOO of popping flashes."

...The CONGRESSIONAL CONFUSION concerning the permanent law behind the retirement of Gen. Van Fleet and the appropriation rider known as the VAN ZANDT AMENDMENT might hurt Pentagon hopes for elimination of the latter in the fiscal '54 money bill. Prior to the renewed attention to retirement legislation, the Defense Dept. felt RELATIVELY SURE the Van Zandt Amendment would not be continued. Its sponsor has conceded that the amendment no longer is needed. But now concern has arisen that Congress may vote to continue the restriction on CAREER OFFICER retirements.

...The prediction in last week's memo that Army Maj. Gen. Harlan N. Hartness would be named to head the Defense Dept. I&E PROGRAM was confirmed officially on 24 March. The post had been vacant since last 1 Aug. During the intervening months, the Navy and AF were asked to NOMINATE OFFICERS for the post to replace Army Maj. Gen. John Devine, now retired. Asst. SecDef John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State, after a recent meeting with the President, is understood to have called for NEW VITALIZATION of the program. General Hartness, 4th Inf. Div. CG in Europe, takes over on 1 May.

...The Army and AF both are expected to issue EARLY STATEMENTS pertaining to acceptance of resignations from Regular officers in line with the drive to get the officer corps on as voluntary a basis as possible. The resignations are expected to be CAREFULLY CONTROLLED, with each case considered on its merits.

...The Defense Dept. wants Congress to extend from 1 July 1953 to 1 July 1955 authority for INTER-SERVICE TRANSFER of officers in the medical services or corps.

—Your Staff

such vessel led to the resignation of the then Secretary of the Navy, and as late as last July the Navy was forced to drop eight other vessels from its shipbuilding program in order to get approval for the second 60,000-ton carrier.

At present, funds for a third Forrestal-class ship are included in the 1954 appropriations and received the approval of former Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett. The new Defense Department team, however, has asked the Navy to reassess the urgency of proceeding at planned rates with its various programs, and it is expected that the third carrier will come in for careful scrutiny before the 1954 military budget is resubmitted.

Elimination of the carrier would, of course, cut a sizable chunk from the requested funds, inasmuch as it will cost over $200 million. The Navy has said repeatedly, however, that it will require at least one new carrier of this type every year for the next ten years if its carrier program is to keep pace with plane developments. Immediately prior to the change in Administration, it was indicated that even this rate might not be adequate to meet the Navy's long-term commitments and that requests might have to be accelerated.

Lt. Gen. Hickey to Retire

Lt. Gen. Doyle O. Hickey, Chief of Staff of the Far East Command, who is eligible to retire 31 July, after more than 35 years of Army service, will return to the U. S. in May.

Upon return to this country and completion of a leave of absence, General
Hickey will enter Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., for physical examination before retirement.

Brig. Gen. John B. Murphy, Director of the Personnel and Administration Division of the U. S. Army in Europe, has been assigned to Headquarters, First Army, Governors Island, N. Y., effective in May.

Brig. Gen. David H. Tulley, Assistant
Chief of the Service Division in the Office of the Army Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, for Logistics, will assume new duties in the Office of the Chief of Engineers, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C., about 1 April.

Brig. Gen. William C. Bullock, Exercise
Director for Desert Rock V and Commanding General of Camp Desert Rock,
Nevada, will succeed Brig. Gen. Robert
A. McClure as Chief of Psychological Warfare, Department of the Army, late this spring. General McClure, as previously announced, has been appointed
Chief of the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group in Tehran, Iran.

I.D. Tags a "Must"

The Navy has learned that some of its personnel are not wearing I.D. tags and has issued instructions to all ships and stations that identification tags with cable or chain "shall be issued to and worn by each person on active duty in the Navy during this time of national emergency."

Select USMC Officers For Capt.; Name 3574 Reservists For Five Ranks

The Marine Corps this week released the names of 706 active duty lieutenants who have been selected for temporary promotion to captain. Included in the group are 468 Regular officers and 238 Reservists.

At the same time, Headquarters also listed the names of 184 Reserve officers, including Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wisc.), who have been selected for promotion to lieutenant colonel. Senator McCarthy had been turned down for promotion by last year's selection board. The board which decided to promote him was headed by Brig. Gen. Matthew C. Horner.

Other lists released by HQMC included the names of 1163 Reserve captains (not on active duty on 15 May 1952) selected for temporary promotion to major; 1169 additional Reserve first lieutenants (not on active duty on 1 May 1952) for temporary promotion to captain; 651 Reserve officers for permanent promotion to first lieutenant; six Reserve officers for promotion to CWO and 163 Reserve officers for advancement from pay grade W-2 to W-3.

Nominate USAR Gens.

President Eisenhower this week asked the Senate to confirm the appointment of the following-named Reserve general officers in their current grades. The action was necessary because of passage of the Armed Forces Reserve Act.

These officers now will serve under an indefinite term in lieu of their five-year appointments.

The officers named below for appointment as Reserve commissioned officers of the Army under the provisions of Section 224, The Armed Forces Reserve Act (P.L. 476, 82d Congress) which provides that commissioned officers of the Officers' Reserve Corps on 9 July 1952, who agree in writing to have their current appointment continued for an indefinite term will be given an appointment for an indefinite term in lieu of their current 5-year appointments:

To Be Major General

Julius O. Adler	Ralph M. Imnell
Edward S. Bres	Harry H. Johnson
Arthur H. Carter	Frank E. Lowe
James B. Cress	Hanford MacNider
William J. Donovan	Edward W. Smith
Wm. H. Draper, Jr.	Leif J. Sverdrup

VOLUNTEER FOR KOREA

Almost 500 infantrymen serving with the U. S. Army in Europe volunteered for Korean duty the first two months of 1953. More than 3,600 infantrymen have requested the Korean duty since the program was initiated in January 1952.

Army Air Field Service

policy is demonstrated by the establishment of liaison offices, as field activities of TCAAFSO, in the Air Force depots in the Air Materiel Areas within the Continental United States. These liaison offices, eleven in all, provide an active means for TCAAFSO to maintain continuous representation in the Air Force depots in this country in which support functions, both supply and maintenance, are performed in behalf of the Army Aviation Program. The establishment of these liaison offices, although only recently completed, has already demonstrated the soundness of the machinery. Through them TCAAFSO expects to achieve responsive maintenance and supply support to Army requirements without duplication of Air Force operations and facilities.

Profiting by its experience in combat, the Army is placing greater emphasis upon widening the application of its aircraft to service type functions which are closely related to ground combat missions. Thus, the support program of the Transportation Corps for organic Army aircraft is directed towards improving the maintenance procedures and strengthening the supply system so as to meet the needs of a field-type Army in combat. The activation of TCAAFSO is the initial step taken by the Transportation Corps to provide a field organization for these purposes.

To provide for representation of the Chief of Transportation at the Headquarters, Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, an additional liaison office operates on a coordinate level with TCAAFSO and is designed primarily to provide liaison between the Office, Chief of Transportation and Headquarters, Air Materiel Command on matters affecting research and development, training, procurement and production relating to the Army Aviation Program. It also provides a lateral means for provision of liaison to TCAAFSO for problems of maintenance, supply, and procurement requiring action in the Headquarters of the Air Materiel Command.

The maintenance concept for Army Aviation is based upon a requirement for close field support for fixed and rotary wing aircraft with comparatively short range. Consequently, aircraft design and engineering to meet Army requirements involve considerations which are dissimilar for the most part to the requirements of the Air Force. Thus, the major maintenance functions of TCAAFSO are to adapt Air Force maintenance procedures to the peculiar requirements of the Army aircraft maintenance system and where required, to develop guidance for the establishment of new procedures for maintenance of Army aircraft. TCAAFSO establishes its maintenance factors upon which it bases its supply and procurement action by its activities in the provisioning and cataloging fields. Its provisioning interests involves coordinated action with the Air Force and industry. This coordination determines appropriate factors which TCAAFSO uses in its computation of supply requirements for the replacement of components on major items required to support scheduled maintenance. The cataloging function of TCAAFSO involves the compilation of technical data for inclusion in supply and maintenance publications, including the standardization of nomenclature and stock numbering systems for establishing interdepartmental maintenance and supply guidance. Tool and Shop requirements for aircraft maintenance within the Army field maintenance system are given specialized attention.

To assure that maintenance policies and procedures adequately reflect the views of the field, TCAAFSO uses every means possible to obtain its source data direct from the users in the field. All available information developed by field maintenance organizations is screened, analyzed, and evaluated by maintenance specialists in TCAAFSO. Maximum application of field data is made in the development of its maintenance procedures. As an example, all unsatisfactory reports (UR's) are evaluated by qualified maintenance personnel in TCAAFSO and coordinated with the applicable Air Force Prime Depot. Experience data derived therefrom are used as a basis for recommending modifications of equipment or for instituting changes in maintenance procedure. A policy of strengthening the ties between TCAAFSO and the field organizations is being vigorously adhered to. This policy is designed to provide adequate technical guidance to the users and to insure uniform implementation of maintenance instructions for safe and effective procedures.

Supply Control

The supply control of Transportation Corps Air Items by TCAAFSO involves extensive utilization of the Air Force stock control system and storage facilities. In accordance with an existing interdepartmental agreement, Air Force depots receive new TC Air Items direct from contractors and repairable items upon return from Army users for depot overhaul. The status of TC Air Stocks in Air Force depots within the Zone of Interior for Army use are reported to TCAAFSO by Headquarters, Air Materiel Command in consolidated, quarterly supply position reports as Army equities. These reports are analyzed in TCAAFSO. The findings are used as the basis upon which future requirements for secondary TC Air items are computed and for initiating action to replenish Army equities in the Continental Depots of the Air Force. (Requirements for the major end items, the Army aircraft, are computed by the Office, Chief of Transportation). Other principal supply responsibilities of TCAAFSO include the formulation of adequate supply procedures for channeling TC Air items through the supply system and the development of instructions to using Army organizations governing the requisition of the items.

Adequate supply in support of the Army Aviation Program depends in a large measure upon an effective system to detect critical areas; to control levels for uninterrupted operation; and to prescribe sufficient allowances. Regulation of supply is restricted to that required to insure effective distribution. Usage factors developed by experience govern the establishment of levels and allowances. Because supply for support of Army aircraft, particularly in the case of helicopters, is governed by a higher tempo of consumption than is normally encountered in most other types of supply activity, lateral control of supply resources is essential. For that reason TCAAFSO is undertaking to refine its supply reporting system so as to achieve the most effective lateral control of resources available to it in support of the Army Aviation Program.

Procurement and Production

In the field of procurement and production, the Air Force, in most instances, is responsible for contracting for both major and secondary TC Air items. For its requirements for procurement action on secondary TC Air items TCAAFSO processes its requests to the Air Force by means of Military Interdepartmental Procurement Requests (MIPR's). In matters involving production and quality control and for action requiring negotiation of contracts to supply services and supplies in support of Army aviation, TCAAFSO maintains active liaison with the appropriate Air Force organization. One of its major responsibilities in the field of procurement and production is the determination of budget requirements and the funding program to support procurement of secondary TC Air items for the Army by the Air Force.

The supply and maintenance of Army aircraft in overseas areas is accomplished largely in Air Force depots, augmented by maintenance units available to the field-type Army. TCAAFSO at the present time limits its scope primarily to the provision of adequate maintenance procedures, guidance, tools and equipment and to the maintenance of adequate levels of supply in the Continental Air Force depots from which those depots of the Air Force overseas draw their supplies to support Army aircraft in their areas. Thus, although the operational activities of TCAAFSO are presently primarily confined to Z/I channels, it has the responsibility to establish maintenance procedures, to fix supply requirements, and to budget and to fund therefor, on an Army-wide basis.

TCAAFSO, although newly activated and only just begun on its multiple tasks, has already demonstrated again the leading role military transportation is playing in the effort to make unification work. With the Military Air Transport Service (MATS) and the Military Sea Transportation Service (MSTS) prime examples of unification in transportation, TCAAFSO is pointing the way towards another transportation achievement in joint effort and cooperation. It is pursuing a policy of utilizing all existing services, facilities, and supplies of the other elements of the Armed Services, to the end that adequate and effective support to the Army Aviation Program is provided at least cost in resources, manpower, and funds.

18th Air Force Is Two;

Varied Missions Reported

The Nation's youngest numbered air force, the Eighteenth (Troop Carrier) Air Force, marked its second anniversary on 28 March.

Commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Douglass, jr., with headquarters at Donaldson AFB, S. C., the organization is comprised of eight wings.

The threefold mission of troop carrier is vital to the national defense. First, troop carrier stands ready to provide air transportation for the movement of troops, supplies and equipment into prepared or unprepared landing areas, either by parachute or air landing in a theater of operations, and to supply such forces continuously until they are withdrawn or supplied by other means.

Secondly, troop carrier must provide routine airlift of supplies, personnel and equipment for combat forces in the front lines or elsewhere in the theater. Also included in the Eighteenth Air Force objective is furnishing air transportation for the evacuation of casualties, troops and supplies. And the non-scheduled airlift provided by troop carrier stands by to assist the civilian population in emergency.

Five types of aircraft are utilized by the Eighteenth Air Force to perform its objectives. These are: heavy aircraft, exemplified by the C-124; medium, such as the C-82 and C-119; assault transports like the C-122; assault helicopters, such as the H-19; and liaison aircraft, the L-20.

Six wings of the Eighteenth are based along the Eastern seaboard and utilize medium-weight aircraft. The other two units, the 62d Troop Carrier Wing of Larson AFB, Wash., and the recently activated 63d Troop Carrier Wing at Altus Municipal Airport, Okla., are designed to employ the C-124 Globemaster.

With the start of the Korean conflict in 1950, the Air Force found itself called upon to provide increasing airlift capacity. Early the next year it activated the troop carrier air force, incorporated the 314th Troop Carrier Wing—a regular Air Force unit—and called seven reserve wings to active duty.

General Douglass Assumes Command

General Douglass assumed command on 1 May 1951, and the Eighteenth became operational on 1 June. Among the organization's first assignments was training of the reserve units to attain combat-ready status, development of new specialized troop carrier units and the development of new techniques and tactics to keep abreast of the growth in air advancements since World War II.

Participation in major joint Army-Air Force exercises has proved useful in testing techniques and in training the troop carrier wings. Exercise "Southern Pine," conducted in August 1951, provided training in air drop techniques, while Exercise "Snow Fall" in the winter of 1951-52 tested air transportability as well as aerial drops.

In the spring of 1952 Exercise "Long Horn" was held to test and train troop carrier units in air-transported operations. Several months later Exercise "Test Drop," a series of operational missions at Ft. Bragg, N. C., tested new techniques, flight formations and dropping procedures. The most recent exercises, "Warm Wind" and "Cold Spot," were conducted this winter in Alaska and northern New York state, respectively. Cold-weather operations and round-the-clock flying were stressed.

Reserve Wings Deactivated

During the past year the Eighteenth Air Force's six reserve wings have been deactivated and replaced by regular units. During their tours of active duty the reserve wings contributed greatly to the progress in troop carrier operations.

Troop carrier history goes back to the early days of World War II. On 30 April 1942, the Troop Carrier Command was organized in Indianapolis, Ind. Its mission was to organize and train troop carrier, glider and medical evacuation units and crews and to participate in joint training exercises with Army ground forces.

During the war, troop carrier provided effective support for ground units in combat areas. One striking example was the battle of Bastogne, when troop carrier aircraft supplied the beleaguered forces with more than 1,000 tons of equipment and supplies, about 300 artillery weapons and some 8,000 gallons of gasoline. More recently—early in the Korean conflict—troop carrier C-119's parachuted a 250-ton bridge to isolated troops in the Chosin Reservoir area.

In December 1950 troop carrier aircraft based in the Far East received an unusual assignment—evacuating more than a thousand Korean orphans from Seoul to the Cheju-do Islands in the China Sea.

Troop Carrier wings currently in the Eighteenth Air Force are the 62d, Larson AFB, Wash.; 63d, Altus Municipal Airport, Okla.; the 64th Donaldson AFB, S. C.; 313th, Mitchell AFB, N. Y.; 314th, Sewart AFB, Tenn.; 456th, Miami International Airport, Fla.; the 463d, Memphis Municipal Airport, Tenn.; and the 464th, Lawson AFB, Ft. Benning, Ga.

Units formed to perform specialized operations for the Air Force include the First Aerial Port Operations Squadron, charged with loading, lashing and ejecting heavy equipment from aircraft in a tactical situation; the First Aeromedical Group, to treat and evacuate casualties; and the newly formed Pathfinder Squadron (Provisional), with jump teams to precede airborne troops and prepare drop areas for their reception. In addition, the 4418th Communications Group maintains communications for the Eighteenth Air Force, and two liaison squadrons have the objective of carrying high-priority cargo and personnel, as well as evacuating patients by air.

Two wings formerly under command of the Eighteenth Air Force have been sent overseas, one to the Far East Air Force and the other to the U. S. Air Forces in Europe.

AMC Assignments

Changes in top-level staff assignments at the Headquarters of the Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, were announced this week by Lt. Gen. E. W. Rawlings, commanding general, AMC.

Maj. Gen. Mark E. Bradley, jr., director of Procurement and Production for the command since 1951, was assigned as chief of the supply and maintenance activity for the Air Force in Europe on the staff of General Lauris Norstad.

He will be succeeded by Brig. Gen. Walter G. Bain, who now is chief of Procurement Division. General Bain will be temporarily succeeded by Brig. Gen. William P. Farnsworth, chief of Quality Control Division.

Col. Joe G. Schneider, now deputy chief of Quality Control, will take over the duties of acting chief of the division.

General Bradley was deputy commander of the First Tactical Air Force Service Command in Europe in 1945. He later was assigned to the Intelligence Section of the U. S. Strategic Air Force in Europe before being re-assigned to Japan as Chief of Staff of the Fifth Air Force. He assumed command of the 301st Fighter Wing on Okinawa in 1946.

Later that year, he returned to the United States and became an instructor at the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va. He was assigned to Wright-Patterson in April, 1948, to the office of the Director of Procurement and Industrial Planning. He later was promoted to deputy director and then to director.

AF Begins Uniform Pay To Reservists Under AFRA

The first Air Force payments of the uniform equipment allowance authorized under the provisions of the Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1952 were made this week by the Air Force Finance Center, Denver, Colo., it is announced by Maj. Gen. John R. Gilchrist, Air Force Director of Finance.

Provisions of the Reserve Act authorize an initial uniform allowance of $200 for Reserve Officers commissioned on or after 1 Jan. 1953. To qualify for this allowance, they must have successfully completed a minimum of 14 drill periods or have served 14 or more days of active duty.

An additional allowance of $100 is authorized for each period of entry on active duty for 90 days or more, commencing on or after 25 June 1950, except that the officer must not have been on active duty for a period of 90 days or more within two years previous to recall date.

Also authorized under the Armed Forces Reserve Act is a uniform and equipment maintenance allowance of $50 for Reserve officers who complete four years of satisfactory Federal service in a Reserve component after 9 July 1952, which must include at least 28 days of active duty. In determining a period of four years of satisfactory Federal service, each period of active duty of more than 90 days must be excluded.

Letter of Applications

A letter of application for the uniform equipment allowance will be utilized, General Gilchrist said. In order to receive payments, eligible officers must submit the appropriate certificate in duplicate to the office indicated. Sample certificates are published herewith.

Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard officers who are affiliated with a Reserve or National Guard unit or hold a mobilization assignment should forward their claims for the uniform equipment allowance through their unit commander to the Finance Officer who otherwise pays their inactive duty training pay.

Air Force Reserve officers who are not now on active duty and are not affiliated with a Reserve unit or hold a mobilization assignment will be paid the uniform equipment allowance, if entitled, by the Continental Air Command Finance Officer who is now paying inactive reserve training pay for the state in which the Reservist resides.

Those former Air Force officers who no longer hold a commission should forward completed certificates claiming allowances incident to extended active duty to the Military Pay Division, Air Force Finance Center. Claims incident to inactive duty training or active duty for training will be forwarded to the appropriate State Adjutant General in the case of former Air National Guard officers; or to the Demobilized Personnel Records Branch, 4300 Goodfellow Blvd., St. Louis, Missouri, in the case of former Air Force Reserve officers.

Uniform allowances that are due mentally incompetent or deceased officers will be paid by the Settlements Division, Air Force Finance Center, on the basis of claims submitted. General Gilchrist pointed out. He further emphasized the fact that the Air Force Finance Center is prepared to give prompt attention and payment to uniform allowance requests when the claims are received.

Dedicates Tune to Navy

Michael Carr, British Composer of "Did Your Mother Come From Ireland" and other hit songs, has written a tune for the U. S. Navy.

The song, "Spirit of Annapolis," is dedicated to the officers and men of the U. S. Navy. Carr was prompted to write the song after talking with U. S. midshipmen visiting London during a summer cruise. The Navy plans to have the Navy Band make vocal and instrumental recordings of the new song, which are to be distributed to the Fleet and other Navy activities.

Rickover Board Completes Work, But Is On Call

The Navy selection board which met on 13 March to name Capt. H. G. Rickover and other EDO and AEDO officers for continuation on the active list is reported to have completed its selections, although remaining on call until the report has cleared the office of the Secretary of the Navy and has been approved by President Eisenhower.

The Officer Personnel Act provides that the President shall approve or disapprove such selections. If any officer on the list is "not acceptable to the President," the Act states, "the board shall be informed of the name of such officer or officers and shall recommend a number of officers for . . . continuation on the active list . . . equal to the number of those found not acceptable to the President and, if necessary, the board shall be reconvened for this purpose."

Secretary of the Navy Robert B. Anderson directed the board to select one officer "experienced and qualified in the field of atomic propulsive machinery for ships." Observers noted that Captain Rickover is the only EDO officer among those considered who possesses such qualifications, and that his selection is a fait accompli.

First Meeting 13 March

The board was directed to meet on 12 March "or as soon thereafter as possible." Due to the inability of two members to reach Washington before that date, the board first met on 13 March. It was expected that, like other boards naming small groups of officers, it would complete its work within 10 days—the prescribed minimum—but no announcement has been made as THE JOURNAL went to press.

In outlining plans for the board, Secretary Anderson said, "Should Captain Rickover be recommended for retention

... he will not be retired on 30 June 1953 and will be eligible for consideration for promotion to the grade of rear admiral by the selection board which will be convened in July 1953."

He noted that the flag board also will be required to select "one engineering duty captain experienced and qualified in the field of atomic propulsive machinery for ships."

Authority Cited

Authority for Mr. Anderson's instructions to the July flag board is contained in section 423 of the Personnel Act. This section states: "... whenever in the opinion of the Secretary of the Navy there is an inadequate number of officers to meet the needs of the service in the grade of rear admiral in the line or in any staff corps of the Navy . . . who are specially qualified for a type of duty required of officers of that grade, the Secretary of the Navy may direct that, of the total number of officers which a selection board may recommend for promotion to such a grade, such number, as determined by him to be necessary to meet the needs of the service, shall be officers who are specially qualified for the required type of duty."

The Navy did not specify the exact number of officers which the present continuation board was given authority to select, although it did note that the board could name "more than one" in each of the two (EDO and AEDO) categories. The Personnel Act stipulates that the number to be selected by the board shall not exceed 10 EDO officers and five AEDO officers.

A LONG-TIME member of the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club—Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower—returned as honor guest this week to the Clubhouse where she spent many hours during World War II working in the canteen.

The comfortable, rambling structure at 1015 L Street, N.W., in downtown Washington, D. C., was gaily decorated with early spring flowers as the Woman's Army and Navy League, sponsors of the Club, entertained in honor of the Nation's First Lady.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who is Honorary President of the Club, was greeted by Mrs. Claude B. Mickelwait, and took her place in a receiving line composed of Mrs. Luther Sheldon, Mrs. W. P. T. Hill, Mrs. Walter S. Grant, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur and Mrs. Maurice Dillingham. Mrs. Anthony C. McAuliffe, Chairman of the Committee for the tea, pinned a gardenia corsage to the shoulder of the honor guest.

Also present were the wives of the Service Secretaries, Mrs. Charles E. Wilson, Mrs. Robert T. Stevens, Mrs. Robert B. Anderson and Mrs. Harold E. Talbott; the wives of the Service Chiefs, Mrs. Omar N. Bradley, Mrs. J. Lawton Collins, Mrs. William M. Fechteler, Mrs. Merlin O'Neill, Mrs. Lemuel C. Shepherd and Mrs. Hoyt S. Vandenberg; and the wives of the Chairmen of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees, Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall and Mrs. Dewey Short.

For her past work in the Club, Mrs. Eisenhower was presented with a National Unity pin. Later, she toured the Clubhouse to see the changes made since she was last there. A former member of the League's Executive Board and an ac-

Weddings and Engagements

The Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Talbott announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Thayer to Mr. Blanche Noyes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jansen Noyes of Montclair, N. J. The wedding is planned tentatively for June.

The bride-elect attended the Braerley School in New York and is a graduate of Miss Hall's School in Pittsfield, Mass., and Sarah Lawrence College. She made her debut at the New York Infirmary Ball in 1945 and is on the editorial staff of Vogue.

She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John B. Thayer of Philadelphia, and the late Colonel and Mrs. Talbott of Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. Noyes attended Lawrenceville School and was graduated from Cornell in 1944. He is a member of Psi Upsilon. He served with the Navy as a lieutenant in the War in the Pacific. Following his discharge he was graduated from Harvard Business School.

EDWARDS-WATLINGTON — Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas M. Watlington, USA, of Washington, D. C., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Clare Watlington, to Capt. Stephen O. Edwards, son of Mrs. O. L. Edwards of Bakersfield, Calif., and the late Dr. Edwards.

Miss Watlington attended St. Margaret's School in Tappahannock, Va., and Holton Arms Junior College in Washington. She is the granddaughter of Maj. Gen. Edgar T. Conley, USA-Ret. and Mrs. Conley of "Green Ridge" Fairland, Md.; and Mrs. Thomas M. Watlington of San Antonio, Tex. She is a Provisional Member of the Junior League of Washington.

Captain Edwards attended the University of Illinois and was graduated in 1946 from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., where he is now stationed as an instructor.

No date has been set for the wedding.

WHINCUP-PATTESON—Col. and Mrs. Elder Patteson, USAF, announce the marriage of their daughter, Florence Elaine, to Lt. Richard Wallace Whincup, USAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Whincup of Royal Oak, Mich. The wedding took place 3 Feb. in St. Ursula's Episcopal Church, Bern, Switzerland. Reverend W. Rowland Jones, the chaplain of the British Legation, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, the U. S. Air Attache to Switzerland. She wore a gown of white Swiss lace with a white satin redingote lengthened to form a train. Her fingertip veil fell from a white satin tiara embroidered with crystals. She carried a wedding bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and white orchids.

The maid of honor was Miss Anni Hartl of Garmisch, Germany.

Serving as best man was Lt. Donald C. Smith, USAF. The ushers were Lt. Col. John A. Augustine, USAF, and Maj. William B. Smith, Jr., USAF.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride cut the first slice of wedding cake with her father's saber.

After a honeymoon at Murren, Switzerland, the groom left for Korea. The bride will live with her parents until his return.

Mrs. Whincup is a graduate of St. Agnes School, Alexandria, Va. She attended George Washington University and is a member of Pi Beta Phi. FT. BRAGG, N. C. Born on the Island of Java in the former Dutch East Indies, a graduate of Holland's West Point, cavalry officer during the brief formal Dutch resistance against Germany and later an organizer of the Dutch underground movement—this is the background of First Lt. Robert Lagerwerff, recently assigned to the Second Loudspeaker and Leaflet Company, a troop unit of the Psychological Warfare Center.

Lieutenant Lagerwerff secured a special waiver enabling him to be commissioned as a U. S. Army officer last year, despite the fact that he is not yet a U. S. citizen. His wife, whom he married in Holland in 1940, is an American citizen and he hopes to attain that status soon.

The 35-year-old officer lived in The Indies until he was 15 years old and then departed for Holland. In 1937 he entered the Royal Military Academy and was appointed a Second Lieutenant in the Dutch Army early in 1940, just in time to see action against the German invaders as a cavalry officer.

In June 1940, with the bulk of the Dutch Army, he was captured and held briefly in a German camp near the Dutch border. One month later, with France defeated and German victory seemingly assured, Lt. Lagerwerff and other Dutch officers were released and returned to Holland. In 1941 he enrolled in the University of Economics, Rotterdam, but he explains that he spent little time studying, devoting most of his energies to helping his fellow Dutch officers organize an underground movement.

By 1942 the Dutch resistance movement was beginning to attract Nazi attention. The Germans, deciding that former Dutch officers were the logical organizers, clamped down and arrested a number of them, including Lt. Lagerwerff. The officers were interned in various POW camps in Germany until April 1945 when the Russians captured their detention center 50 miles north of Berlin.

FORT KNOX, KY. Two outstanding records were established by the newly instituted Fort Knox Chapter of the Reserve Officers Association at its charter meeting 14 March.

The roll of 300 charter members here is the largest in the history of the ROA and the number of units with 100 per cent membership is the highest ever recorded, according to Col. C. M. Boyer, national executive director and main speaker at the meeting. Twenty-six Armored Center outfits received unit citations for their blanket membership.

Lt. Col. Ben Covington, Commanding Officer of the 7th Medium Tank Bn., and an instrumental figure in organizing the Fort Knox ROA chapter, was elected president. Lt. Col. Richard D. Gillis, 84th Tank Bn. Commander, was named vice president.

Treasurer will be Mrs. L. D. Ralston, a first lieutenant in the WAC Reserve. Capt. James M. Burke, Hq. Bn., 2128th A. S. U., will be secretary.

Seven directors chosen are Maj. Stanislaw Niece, Capt. Q. R. Rowland, Lt. Col. William L. Walker, Maj. R. D. Savage, Capt. William H. Vaughn, Col. Robert C. Edgar and 1st Lt. Calvert R. Bregel.

Maj. Gen. J. H. Collier, Armored Center commanding general, opened the meeting by wishing the new chapter good fortune. He said, "All Reserve officers should belong to this organization because it enables them to gather together and exchange thoughts, and the more thoughts exchanged, the better." The commanding general added, "I am very glad to have the chapter here. I hope it will be vociferous."

BUFFALO, N. Y. On the Niagara Frontier composed of Buffalo, Niagara Falls, and the immediate area, a new organization has been formed known as the Armed Forces Association of the Niagara Frontier for the purpose of promoting mutual assistance and closer cooperation between all members of the association and to promote the standing of the military establishment in these communities.

Membership in this association is composed of those officers of the Regular, active duty Reserve and Federalized National Guard components of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and the Coast Guard. Associate membership is being extended to officers of the Reserve and National Guard components and honorary membership to such persons as the mayors and presidents of Chambers of Commerce and other worthy individuals.

The association is governed by a Board of Directors composed of the senior officers on duty in the area from each of the five services. The current Board of Directors consists of Col. Philip R. Garges, District Engineer of Buffalo, for the Army, as President of the Board, Capt. Thurston H. James, Director and Commanding Officer of the Naval Air Station at Niagara Falls, N. Y., Lt. Col. Harry B. Hooper, in charge of the Marine Air Detachment at the Naval Air Station at Niagara Falls, N. Y., Lt. Col. Roswell W. Ard, USAF, Professor of Air Science and Tactics at the University of Buffalo, and Comdr. J. T. Hagglove of the U. S. Coast Guard Base in Buffalo. There are over 260 officers in the area eligible for membership in this association.

The association has been conducting monthly luncheon meetings. Chairmanship of these luncheons is being passed on to Major Omer D. Carroum of the Army Reserve Unit in Buffalo. Up until this time, Lt. Colonel E. E. Evertz, Jr., USAF, of the Army and Air Force Recruiting and Induction Main Station, Buffalo, N. Y., has been the luncheon committee chairman.

This association also has conducted two dinner parties and one dance since its inception. The present entertainment committee chairman for these dances is Lt. Col. Andrew M. Dunn, Professor of Military Science and Tactics at Canisius College in Buffalo. Frank R. Maeridian, Commander of the 11th Regiment; Col. Thomas D. McPhail, Commander of the 85th Tank Battalion; Lt. Col. Frederick W. Maxwell, Commander of the 5th Medical Battalion; 1st Lt. Richard L. Sears, Mess Officer, Officers Field Mess; and Capt. James M. Popovich, Secretary, Officers' Club.

Also present were Col. Julian B. Lindsey, Commander of the 10th Regiment; Col. John K. Connelly, Post Chaplain; 1st Lt. William D. Davis, Aide-de-Camp to the Division Commander, and his fiancée, Miss Susan Sprague; Capt. Martin J. Kavanaugh, Secretary to the General Staff; Mrs. William A. Walker, wife of Col. ■ NORFOLK, VA. Recently promoted to the rank of colonel were two faculty instructors in the Plans and Operations Division. Col. Elias C. Townsend, USA, and Col. Harry W. O. Kinnard, USA. William H. Vall, Jr., USA, a student officer, was also promoted to colonel. Lt. Harry H. Devenish, USN, of the Naval Administrative Command, was promoted to lieutenant commander.

The Woman's Club met 18 March for a gala spring luncheon. The theme of the day was Easter bonnets, and everyone attending wore a creation of her own design. Brown paper bags were given out at the door to be worn by those who, for lack of time or genius, had failed to create a hat. The luncheon tables were appropriately decorated with boughs swathed in veiling and hung with real, but miniature, handmade hats. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. William Harris for the prettiest hat, Mrs. William Crum for the funniest, and Mrs. Charles Nace for the most original. Honorable mention went to Mrs. Perry. Miss Peggie Meredith gave a short talk and a demonstration of the art of making new hats and making over old ones. About 100 members of the Club and their guests were present.

■ FT. RILEY, KANS. Twenty-four officers, all graduates of the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., held their annual Founder's Day Dinner last week.

Sixth Fleet Fetes Orphans

The U. S. Sixth Fleet feted Italian orphans at parties aboard two of its ships in Naples Bay this month.

The destroyer McCaffery, one of 18 U. S. ships making a courtesy visit in the Mediterranean seaport, hosted 50 boys from the Children's Institute of Villa Ruffo with ice cream, movies and a tour of the ship.

Aboard the destroyer Norris a group of 25 girls from the Verolino Orphanage in Barra were treated to a similar good time. After the festivities, each child was given a toy.

Marines Aboard Bennington

Marine officers, enlisted men, and planes of Marine Aircraft Group-14's Attack Squadron-211 and Fighter Squadrons-122 and 223 of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing are now aboard the newly-recommissioned aircraft carrier USS Bennington on a shakedown and training cruise.

Several firsts were scored by the Marines as they began flight operations. Lt. Col. Thomas W. Furlow, Commanding Officer of Attack Squadron-211, became the first pilot to take off from and land on the Bennington since the end of World War II. Fighter Squadron-122, the first all jet squadron in the Marine Corps, and the squadron's Executive Officer, Lt. Col. Francis H. Smyth, added to the record as the colonel made the first Bennington jet plane landing. Colonel Smyth took off from Cecil Field, Jacksonville, Fla., in his F9F Panther jet and met the Carrier off the coast.

The "demothballed" Bennington is the third of the Essex class to be converted into the modern "atomic" type carrier, with strengthened flight deck necessary for jet aircraft operations, increased automatic anti-aircraft armament, improved fueling facilities, and revised communications system.

Commands Walter Reed

Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, MC, USA, will assume command of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C. on 1 April, succeeding Maj. Gen. Paul H. Streit, MC, USA, who, having reached the statutory retirement age, is leaving the Army 31 March.

The new Walter Reed Army Medical Center commander has been serving as Commanding General of Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, Calif., since 10 July 1950.

General Heaton will become the tenth officer to command Walter Reed Army Medical Center which includes the Army Medical Service Graduate School, the Army Central Dental Laboratory, the Army Prosthetics Research Laboratory, and Walter Reed Army Hospital, at both Washington, D. C. and Forest Glen, Md. locations. He will also become the 19th to head the Center's Walter Reed Army Hospital component—the installation around which the Center was formed in 1923.

FOOT SOLDIER 'GROUNDED'

Lt. Bill Travis of the Army, son of Col. and Mrs. Harrison G. Travis, has been "grounded." A veteran of 157 combat missions over Korea, he holds three Distinguished Flying Crosses and 11 Air Medals.

The lieutenant, an Ordnance officer now assigned to the Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala., the Army's rocket and guided missile center for research and development, ran up a tremendous record of air time in Korea directing jets against Communist ground targets from a slow-moving plane.

Armed Forces Join For Easter Sunrise Service

The Army, Navy, and Air Force will participate in this year's Easter Sunrise Service at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. This traditional religious event will be held outdoors in the natural amphitheater setting of Walter Reed's Formal Gardens on 5 April, between seven and eight o'clock.

All military personnel of the Washington area are invited to join Walter Reed's patients and duty personnel.

The Easter sermon will be delivered by the Navy Chief of Chaplains, Rear Adm. Edward B. Harp, jr., who has chosen as his text, "Where Death Has No Dominion."

Music will be furnished by the U. S. Army Band under direction of Maj. Hugh Curry. They will present a 30-minute

Mrs. Jouett Shouse, President of the Potomac Boxer Club, was the guest of honor at the monthly luncheon meeting of JANGO on 17 March at the Army-Navy Country Club, Arlington. She brought news of the Boxer Dog Specialty Show to be held on 17 April at the Ft. Myer Gymnasium, and which will benefit JANGO. Pictured here are members of JANGO who are working with her to make the show a success. Seated, from left to right, are Mrs. E. S. Tarr, Mrs. George W. Hinman, Chairman of the JANGO committee, and Mrs. Shouse. Standing, from left to right, are Mrs. Kurt Waltschek, Mrs. Oscar Schroeder, Mrs. T. C. Anderson, and Mrs. H. M. Smith.

musical prelude prior to the service.

The U. S. Air Force Band's "Singing Sergeants," under the direction of Lt. Robert L. Landers, will form the choir.

Just prior to the religious service, all honor guards of various veterans' organizations and color guards of hundreds of civic, fraternal, and veterans' groups, including their auxiliaries, will join in a "Massing of the Colors" ceremony. Color guards will report to Maj. Robert C. Judy.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Oscar W. Schoech, post chaplain at Walter Reed, will conduct the service, Washington's oldest currently being conducted. Chaplain (Capt.) Carey M. Young will lead the recitation of The Lord's Prayer. The Benediction will be pronounced by Chaplain (Maj.) William R. S. Donaghy.

Reserve Policy Board

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson has appointed Dr. Arthur S. Adams, president of the American Council of Education, to be chairman of the Reserve Force Policy Board of the Department of Defense, it was announced this week.

The Board is the chief policy advisor on Reserve affairs to the Secretary of Defense. Its present chairman, Charles H. Buford, has held the post since June 1951. Dr. Adams will succeed him at the next Board meeting in April.

Dr. Adams is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy. He served in the Navy in World War I and was retired in 1921. Recalled to active duty during World War II. Dr. Adams served in several posts in the Bureau of Naval Personnel for four years, ending 1945, when he again retired. He was awarded the Legion of Merit for exceptionally meritorious achievement in the Bureau of Naval Personnel from Nov. 1942 to Nov. 1945.

He was named president of the University of New Hampshire in 1948, and three years later was named chief of the American Council of Education.

Disability Retirement

The Comptroller General has ruled (Decision B-96905) that where there is a correction of record showing disability at time of release from active duty, personnel involved are entitled to retired pay retroactive to date of release.

The official digest of the decision follows:

"A former member of the Marine Corps Reserve, whose naval record has been corrected by the Board of Corrections of Naval Records pursuant to section 207 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, as amended, to show that he was incapacitated for active duty at time of release for active duty because of physical disability suffered while on active duty under orders contemplating naval service in excess of thirty days and that such incapacity is permanent, is entitled to retired pay retroactive to date of such release."

The decision was rendered in the case of Alan B. Hobbes, Captain, USMCR.

Obituaries

Maj. Gen. Gustav H. Franke, USA-Ret.

Maj. Gen. Gustav H. Franke, USA-Ret, 64, died 19 March at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., following an illness of several months.

General Franke, a 1911 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., is survived by his wife, Mildred, of Myrtle Beach, S. C., a son, Army Maj. Gustav H. Franke, Jr., a Reserve Officer Training Corps instructor at the University of Florida, Gainesville; and two daughters, Mrs. E. H. Kerison, Jr., of Camden, S. C., and Mrs. Christian Hanburger of 112 North Columbus Street, Arlington, Va. Also surviving are three sisters, Miss Dorothy Franke and Mrs. Frank Schroeder, both of San Diego, Calif., and Mrs. A. L. Frelove of Skokie, Ill.

A native of Manning, Iowa, General Franke was commissioned a second lieutenant of Coast Artillery upon graduation from West Point and transferred to the Field Artillery in July 1916.

Prior to the first World War, General Franke served in the Philippines and as an instructor at the U. S. Military Academy. During WW I, he served with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, and participated in the Battle of Cantigny and in the Montdidier-Noyon Defensive.

Following WW I, General Franke served in various assignments in this country and at Fort Clayton in the Panama Canal Zone. During this period he also was graduated from The Artillery School, Ft. Sill, Okla., the Army's Command and General Staff School, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., and the Army War College, Washington, D. C.

Among General Franke's WW II assignments was command of the Field Artillery Replacement Training Center at Ft. Bragg, N. C. And in May, 1942, he became CG of the 81st Infantry Division at Camp Rucker, Ala., upon the division's activation.

Before retiring from the Army in December 1943 he was assigned to the Army Group, Washington, D. C., for duty with the War Department Dependency Board.

Funeral services were held 23 March in the Memorial Chapel at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C. Burial was in the cemetery at West Point with full military honors at graveside on 24 March.

Comdr. J. W. Rodas, USNR

Comdr. Joseph Waller Rodas, USNR, died at his quarters at the U. S. Naval Academy on 19 March of a heart attack.

A 1920 graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, Commander Rodas had served as Comptroller of the Severn River Naval Command since 5 Sept. 1951. During World War II, he was a member of the Seventh Amphibious Force, participating in the Battles for Leyte and Lingayen Gulf. He was awarded the Legion of Merit with Combat "V" and the Navy Unit Citation.

Before coming to Annapolis, he served in San Diego, Calif., as Fiscal Control Officer for the Eleventh Naval District.

Commander Rodas is survived by his wife, Mrs. Admonia Allingham Rodas and his son, Midshipman Allen Higgins Rodas, a third classman at the Naval Academy.

Memorial services were held in the St. Andrews Chapel of the Academy Chapel on 21 March, and interment was at Lexington, Ky.

on 19 March, following a heart attack. He was 61.

Born in Brownsville, Tenn., on 21 Oct. 1891. Admiral Thomas was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in June 1914, served aboard the USS Maryland during the occupation of Vera Cruz, Mexico, and aboard the South Dakota and Oklahoma during World War II.

Later, he qualified for command of submarines and assumed command of the USS S-13 in 1924. In 1934, he became Commander, Submarine Division 8 at Pearl Harbor, following which he was graduated from the senior course at the Naval War College and served on the staff there for two years.

Immediately prior to World War II, he was Executive Officer of the USS Minneapolis and a member of the staff of the Special War Supply Mission to the USSR. In May 1943 he assumed command of the USS North Carolina and was awarded the Legion of Merit for service against enemy Japanese forces in the Pacific.

From November 1944 until his retirement in 1947, he was the Navy Member of the Joint Post-War Planning Committee, Headquarters of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Admiral Thomas is survived by his widow Mrs. Marguerite Muller Thomas of RFD 4, Bell's Mill Road, Rockville, Md., and one son, Mr. Philip F. Thomas of 1440 Washington Street, Alexandria, Va. Another son, Lt. Francis Pugh Thomas, USN (Class of 1943), lost his life when the submarine USS Growler was sunk due to enemy action in the China Sea on 7 Nov. 1944.

Mrs. Nina Baker O'Banion

Mrs. Nina Baker O'Banion, wife of Capt. Ernest F. O'Banion, USA-Ret., of 26 S. Ohio Ave., Columbus 5 Ohio, died at her home on 16 March.

Mrs. O'Banion, daughter of the late Orinda and Louis Baker of Ironton, was a great-granddaughter of Frederick Baker, who served as an orderly for General George Washington, during the Revolutionary War.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sons, Mr. William E. Bryant of Ironton, and Mr. Louis N. Bryant of Holister, Calif.; four sisters, Miss Etta Baker, Mrs. Amanda Kaiser, Mrs. Alice Lawless, all of Ironton, and Mrs. Nola Kelley of Pedro, O.; six grandchildren, Louis N. Bryant, Jr., Mrs. William Anderson, William A. Bryant, Frances E. Bryant, Jeanette Bryant and Lt. William P. Bryant, USAF, Harlingen AFB, Tex., and five great-grandchildren.

Burial was at Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D. C., on 20 March.

Capt. Warner R. Edsall, USN

Capt. Warner Ryerson Edsall, USN, Commanding Officer of the battleship Missouri, died at the con of his ship in the Far East on 26 March of a heart attack.

A 1927 graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, Captain Edsall was 48. He had served as Commanding Officer of the Missouri since last September.

During the early part of World War II, he served on the staff of the Commander in Chief, U. S. Fleet, as Assistant Operations Officer, and later as Commander of the destroyer tender USS Melville. In October 1944 he became Commander of Destroyer Division 110 in the Pacific, and subsequently served as Chief of Staff to the Commander, Cruiser Division 13, Pacific Fleet, and in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

Captain Edsall was assigned as Commander of Destroyer Squadron 8 in April 1947, and the following year became Assistant Chief of Staff for Operations to the Commander in Chief, Atlantic Fleet. In 1951, he was graduated from the National War College and assigned to duty with the Joint Chiefs of Staff before taking command of the Missouri.

His decorations include the Legion of Merit, five awards of the Bronze Star Medal, and both the Army and Navy Commendation Ribbons.

Captain Edsall is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Harriman Edsall of 2895 South Abingdon Boulevard, Arlington, Va., a daughter, Margaret Katherine, 20, and a son, Robert Harriman, 18.

armed force concerned in each individual case, as of the date of retirement in the case of an active member and as of the date of election in the case of a retired member, by an actuarial equivalent method using as a basis appropriate actuarial tables selected by the Board of Actuaries designated in section 8 and an interest rate of 2% per centum per annum. In the case of an active member the computation shall be made at the time of retirement, and the actuarial equivalent method and actuarial tables shall be those in effect at the date of retirement.

Sec. 5. A retired member of an armed force who has made the election specified in section 3 shall, during any period in which he is not receiving retired or retirement pay, deposit with the United States Treasury the amount which would have been withheld from his retired or retirement pay had he been receiving that pay.

Sec. 6. Determination and certification of eligibility for, and payment of, annuities payable under this Act and any other payments or refunds authorized shall be made by the armed force concerned, except that payments for the Coast Guard shall be made through the disbursing facilities of the Treasury Department, and such determinations, certifications, and payments shall not be subject to review by any administrative or accounting officer of the Government.

Sec. 7. (a) The head of the department concerned is empowered to use any means provided by law to recover amounts of annuities erroneously paid to any individual under this Act. The head of the department concerned may authorize such recovery by adjustments in subsequent payments to which the individual is entitled.

(b) There need be no recovery as provided in subsection (a) of this section when, in the judgment of the head of the department concerned, the individual to whom the erroneous payment has been made is without fault and recovery would be contrary to the purpose of this Act or would be against equity and good conscience.

(c) No certifying or disbursing officer shall be held liable for any amount erroneously certified or paid by him pursuant to this Act, unless, in the judgment of the head of the department concerned, such erroneous certification or payment is the result of his gross negligence or his intent to defraud.

Sec. 8. This Act shall be administered under regulations prescribed by the President, which regulations shall be uniform insofar as practicable for all of the Armed Forces. The President shall report annually to the Congress upon the operation of this Act. For the purpose of advising in the administration of this Act, the President shall convene annually, or oftener if he deems necessary, a Board of Actuaries to be composed of the Government Actuary, the Chief Actuary of the Social Security Administration, and an actuary to be nominated by the Society of Actuaries. The compensation of the actuary nominated by the Society of Actuaries shall be fixed by the President. The tables to be used in computing deductions in retired or retirement pay to provide the annuities payable under this Act shall be those recommended by the Board of Actuaries.

Sec. 9. No annuity payable under this Act shall be assignable, either in law or equity, or be subject to execution, levy or attachment, garnishment, or other legal process.

Sec. 10. All annuities payable under this Act shall accrue from the first day of the month in which the retired member dies and shall be due and payable not later than the fifteenth day of each month following that month and in equal monthly installments thereafter, except that no annuity shall accrue or be paid for the month in which entitlement to that annuity terminates.

Sec. 11. Annuities payable under this Act shall be in addition to any pensions or other payments to which the beneficiaries may now or hereafter be entitled under other provisions of law.

Sec. 12. In any case in which the head of the department concerned determines that a person entitled to an annuity under this Act is not an appropriate payee, the annuity shall be paid on behalf of the annuitant to such person as the head of the department may designate.

Sec. 13. There are hereby authorized to be permanently appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 14. This Act shall take effect on the first day of the month following the month in which it is enacted.

Sec. 15. Section 2 of the Servicemen's Indemnity Act of 1951 is amended by—

(a) deleting in the first clause thereof the words "active duty or active training duty for fourteen days or more" and substituting therefore the words "active Federal service"; and

(b) amending the second proviso thereto to read as follows: "Provided further, That persons in the reserve components while engaged in active duty for training or inactive-duty training, with or without pay for any period of time, persons in the National Guard when ordered to Federal active duty for training, and persons in the reserve components, including the National Guard, while engaged in aerial flights in Government owned or leased aircraft, with or without pay for any period of time, as an incident to their military or naval training, shall be deemed to be in the active service for the purpose of this Act."

Sec. 16. The Act of July 15, 1939 (53 Stat. 1042), as amended (5 U. S. C. 797), and section 304 of the Naval Reserve Act of 1938 (52 Stat. 1181), as amended (34 U. S. C. 855c), with the exception of the third and fourth provisos thereto, are hereby repealed. The repeal of these provisions of law shall not operate to deprive any person of any rights, benefits, or compensation awarded thereunder prior to the effective date of this Act.

Sec. 17. (a) Section 4 of the Naval Aviation Personnel Act of 1940, as amended (34 U. S. C. 855c-1), is further amended by amending paragraphs (1) and (2) thereof to read as follows:

"(1) If called or ordered by the Federal Government into active naval or military service for extended naval or military service or to perform active duty for training in excess of thirty days, suffer disability or death in line of duty from disease or injury while so employed or while performing authorized travel to or from such duty; or

"(2) If called or ordered by the Federal Government to perform active duty, active duty for training or inactive-duty training, for a period of thirty days or less, with or without pay, or while in the performance of authorized inactive-duty training, with or without pay, suffer disability or death in line of duty from injury while so employed or while performing authorized travel to or from such duty, including authorized travel to or from inactive-duty training only if such travel is by Government vehicle or aircraft."

(b) The last proviso of section 1 of the Act of August 30, 1935 (49 Stat. 1028, ch. 830), as amended (10 U. S. C. 456), is further amended by amending paragraphs (1) and (2) thereof to read as follows:

"(1) If called or ordered into the active military service by the Federal Government for extended military service or to perform active duty for training, in excess of thirty days, suffer disability or death in line of duty from disease or injury while so employed or while performing authorized travel to or from such duty; or

"(2) If called or ordered by the Federal Government to perform active duty, active duty for training or inactive-duty training, for a period of thirty days or less with or without pay, or while in the performance of authorized inactive-duty training, with or without pay, suffer disability or death in line of duty from injury while so employed or while performing authorized travel to or from such duty, including authorized travel to or from inactive-duty training only if such travel is by Government vehicle or aircraft."

(c) Section 3 of the Act of June 20, 1949 (63 Stat. 202), is amended by amending paragraphs (1) and (2) thereof to read as follows:

"(1) If engaged for periods in excess of thirty days in any type of training or active duty under section 5, 81, 92, 94, 97, or 99 of the National Defense Act, as amended, suffer disability or death in line of duty from disease or injury while so engaged or while performing authorized travel to or from such training or duty; or

"(2) If engaged for a period of thirty days or less in any type of training or active duty under such sections of the National Defense Act, as amended, suffer disability or death in line of duty from injury while so engaged or while performing authorized travel to or from such training or duty, including authorized travel to or from inactive-duty training only if such travel is by Government vehicle or aircraft."

(d) The Career Compensation Act of 1949, as amended, is further amended by—

(1) Inserting in clause (1) of subsection (a) and clause (1) of subsection (b) of section 402 after the words "active duty," where they appear in each of these clauses, the words "full-time training duty or other full-time duty";

(2) amending clause (4) of subsection (a) of section 402 by deleting the words "active duty" and substituting therefor the words "such duty or of travel to or from such duty"; and

(3) amending clause (4) of subsection (c) of section 402 to read as follows:

"(4) that such injury was the proximate result of the performance of active duty, full-time training duty, or full-time duty, travel to or from such duty, or inactive duty training or travel to or from such duty when the travel was by Government vehicle or aircraft, as the case may be;"

Survivor Benefits Fight Waged in Britain Also

British military leaders, like their comrades in the United States, are fighting for equitable benefits to widows and children of those who die in Service.

This is emphasized in an article by Capt. Russell Grenfell, RN-Ret., in the current issue of The Navy, official publication of the British Naval League.

Captain Grenfell notes that widows' pensions were recently increased. He gives important credit to the "splendid initiative" of Lords Cunningham of Hyndhope, Alanbrooke and Portal in sending a letter to the Times on this problem.

Quick action followed, says Captain Grenfell, who then points the following moral:

"The Treasury and the Government will do nothing for the Services unless and until a heavy kick is administered from behind. That point needs to be well underlined."

Then, the Captain analyzes pensions for widows and children of military personnel in comparison with those paid to survivors of those in the Civil Service.

He observes that "no less than three grades of Civil Service widows are pensioned at higher rates than the highest combatant widow."

Captain Grenfell says that "it is absolutely essential for Service officers to get their widows' pensions and children's allowances put on the same percentage-of-pension basis as applies to civil servants, and they should never rest content until that is done."

Captain Grenfell notes that the charge is made that non-contributory nature of the Service pensions and allowances makes them different from those of the Civil Service.

He comments: "It is really not very difficult to gauge the Treasury's aim in this matter. It is to give civil servants, by the device of contribution, an apparently cast-iron statutory claim to automatic benefits, while the fighting services are kept on a 'grace and favour' basis which puts them completely in the Treasury's power."

Naval Aviation Exhibit

A special exhibition illustrating the history and development of Naval aviation with emphasis on future trends in aerial design and technique, will open 2 April at the Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, Mich.

The exhibit will be assembled with the cooperation of the Navy and will include such items as a ram-jet engine, reaction motor, F9F jet plane, Bell helicopter, a Link trainer, "bat" and "loon" missile, Norden bombsight, aerial depth charge and torpedo, and miscellaneous ordnance equipment such as a 1,000-pound bomb, a "blockbuster" and a "Tiny Tim" rocket.

Gen. Sarnoff Presented Engineers' First Award

Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, Chairman of the Board of the Radio Corporation of America, was honored 25 March as first recipient of the Founders Award of the Institute of Radio Engineers at the annual banquet of the I. R. E. in New York City. He was cited for "outstanding contributions to the radio engineering profession through wise and courageous leadership in the planning and administration of technical developments which have greatly increased the impact of electronics on the public welfare."

Acknowledging the Award, General Sarnoff delivered the main address at the annual dinner of the I. R. E., which was attended by more than 1,000 engineers. He told them that their future in radio, electronics and television is fascinating and promising, and that even their wildest dreams cannot encompass all the possibilities open to them in the years ahead. The fields of conquest in radio-electronics, he declared, are unlimited.

Praising the engineers and their contributions to national defense, General Sarnoff called them "soldiers of science, defenders of the flag." They too, he said, are in the front line that bulwarks progress and prosperity.

Proposes New CD Airlift

Details of the Lewin Plan for the formation of a Civil Defense Air Transport Militia as proposed to Governor Val Peterson, newly appointed Administrator of the Federal Civil Defense Administration, were announced in Washington this week. The plan, it was stated, proposes to organize a voluntary reserve of transport lift equal to the entire scheduled airline fleet at the outset of World War II, after military withdrawals had been completed.

This program was suggested to augment existing plans for civil defense utilization of scheduled airline aircraft and can be adopted readily for emergency Department of Defense moves. It was suggested that after primary evaluation had been completed by the Transportation Division of FCDA, that representatives of the Corporation Aircraft Owners Association, the Civil Aeronautics Administration Communications Division, the Defense Air Transport Administration and North American Aircoach Systems, Inc., be asked to assist in completing the operational details. The proposal was made by Mr. J. B. Lewin, president of North American Aircoach Systems.

The plan embraces approximately 270 aircraft of the DC-3 category which are not engaged in scheduled airline operation and proposes to use the communications net operated by North American.

Seek Better Electronics Gear

Maj. Gen. C. S. Irvine, deputy commander for production at Air Materiel Command headquarters, has asked the nation's electronic producers for better, tougher and cheaper systems to meet the demands of tomorrow's lightning air power.

Addressing a session of the Radio-Television Manufacturers' Association in New York City, General Irvine lauded the "phenomenal progress" made in the electronics field over the last decade, but coupled his praise with a warning that many of the complex systems are still "temperamental prima donnas."

"Their unreliability is a dangerous weakness which we must remedy fast if we are to keep apace in the race for air supremacy," General Irvine said.

In line with this, the AMC production head called for (1) simplification and standardization of equipment to permit reliable quantity production at less cost and (2) realistic surveys that will determine actual electronic needs and eliminate "fancy trimmings."

"We are learning to draw the line in a pushbutton paradise between gadgets that pay their way in operational efficiency or pilot safety, and those that do not," he declared.

Deploring "ivory tower, test-chamber electronics," General Irvine said the Air Force must have more rugged reliable systems, within reach of the public pocketbook.

He said this need will increase steadily as electronic producers are called upon for equipment that will take even higher speeds, tremendous temperature variations, and greater vibration and G-forces as we advance in the realm of rockets and pilotless aircraft.

O.K. USAF Press Program

The Air Force Heavy Press Program has been reviewed and the program will proceed as it is now constituted, the Defense Department announced this week.

The maintenance of leadership in design, development and production of conventional and pilotless aircraft and rockets is in part predicated on the availability of the heavy forging and extrusion presses now under construction, it was stated.

The establishment of the Heavy Press Program, it was pointed out, resulted from the need for development of larger capacity facilities to meet the requirement for stronger structural members of airframes and a more efficient method of production of numerous components for both airframes and engines. These heavy presses, while contributing greatly to the production of today's modern aircraft, also permit improved manufacturing techniques, expandability in the event of emergency and reduced production costs.

New high speed, high performance aircraft require the greatest structural strength possible with weight being held to a minimum. Utilization of these new forging and extrusion presses will enable lower cost, quantity production of structural members with a high strength to weight ratio, not possible using current production methods.

Short Aircraft Engrs.

Although unprecedented numbers of engineers are working today to design, develop and produce America's high-performance warplanes, the shortage of experienced engineers has become one of the aircraft industry's most serious manpower problems, according to an article in the current issue of Planes, official publication of the Aircraft Industries Association.

Between 50 and 60 thousand engineers are at work in airframe, engine and component plants throughout the nation. In addition, uncounted thousands of engineers are in plants of the more than 61,000 subcontractors and suppliers of the industry.

To fill this growing need of the aircraft industry, plus that of the rest of American industry, it has been estimated that a minimum of 30,000 engineers should be graduated from U. S. schools each year. Expected graduation this year will be about 10,000 below that minimum goal.

These shortages are magnified as it becomes necessary to build the heavier and more complex planes required in an atomic and supersonic era. A typical modern fighter, for example, requires 27 times as many engineering hours as its World War II counterpart.

Among the extensive programs of the aircraft industry to meet production requirements despite the critical shortage of engineers are (1) intensive recruiting, (2) job simplification projects, (3) training activities, and (4) subcontracting of work ordinarily done in home plants.

Glenn L. Martin Report

The Glenn L. Martin Company has returned to profitable operations, according to President George M. Bunker's letter in the company's Annual Report released this week.

Sales for the year amounted to $143,999,382 compared with $68,480,519 for the previous year. Net income was $5,808,312, equivalent to $3.03 per share on 1,913,974 shares outstanding at the end of the year, compared with a loss of $22,178,434 for the previous year.

Next in importance was the reduction of debt. On 31 Dec. 1952 the company's interest-bearing debt, including advance payments, amounted to approximately $27,000,000, a reduction of more than $26,000,000 from the end of the previous year.

Thus the report pointed out, it was possible, in January of 1953 to make new arrangements with the commercial banks increasing the available V-loan credit to $32,500,000, of which only $17,000,000 is now being used. At the same time all loans and commitments with Reconstruction Finance Corporation were either retired or canceled.

Gen. Royce Joins Firm

Maj. Gen. Ralph C. Royce, USAF-Ret., has been appointed assistant to the president of American Airmotive Corp. at Miami, Fla., it was announced this week by Ben Epstein, president.

General Royce, a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy class of 1914, commanded the First Air Force in 1943 and later commanded the American forces in the Middle East.

Announcement was also made of the selection of Harold W. Hunter as vice president in charge of manufacturing. Mr. Hunter was formerly vice president of the Aeronca Aircraft Co.

Aircraft Firm to Elect Lt. Gen. Kepner Exec. V.P.

Lt. Gen. William E. Kepner, USAF-Ret., will join Bell Aircraft Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y., on 1 April and is expected to be elected executive vice president at a meeting of the company's board of directors 6 April.

Lt. Gen. Kepner

The announcement was made by President Lawrence D. Bell who said the executive vice presidency is a newly created office.

General Kepner retired from the Air Force last month. He began his military career as a private in the Marines in 1909 and served with the Army before entering the Air Force in 1921. His most recent assignment was commander-in-chief, Alaskan Command.

Previously, he was commanding general of the Air Proving Ground Command, Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., from 1948 until moving to Alaska in July 1950. After distinguished service in the European Theater in World War II, he served as assistant deputy chief of staff, Operations, for Atomic Energy, Hdqts., USAF, Washington, D. C.

In World War II, General Kepner commanded the Fourth Air Force until Sept. 1943, when he took over the Eighth Fighter Command in the European Theater. In August 1944, he was named commanding general of the Second Bombardment Division of the Eighth Air Force; in May 1945, succeeded to command of the Eighth Air Force and, four months later, became commanding general of the Ninth Air Force. During his command of various tactical and strategic forces in Europe, General Kepner participated in 24 missions over enemy territory, 10 in fighter aircraft, 14 in bombers.

General Kepner has held a variety of Air Force assignments, has logged more than 10,000 hours in almost every type of military aircraft; and is the only living person who holds these ratings—command pilot, combat observer, senior balloon pilot, zeppelin pilot, semi-rigid pilot and metalclad airship pilot.

Build Reserve Training Centers

Construction of nine Army Reserve training facilities in six states has been authorized at an estimated cost of $1-526,000.

Location and size of the facilities are as follows:

Elmira, N. Y.—400-man armory.
Columbia, S. C.—400-man armory.
Jacksonville, Fla.—800-man armory and motor vehicle shed.
Ft. Wayne, Ind.—200-man armory.
Fond du Lac, Wisc.—200-man armory.
Appleton, Wisc.—200-man armory.
South Bend, Ind.—motor vehicle shed.
Palo Alto, Calif.—200-man armory.
Pasadena, Calif.—400-man armory.

The units approved for construction today are the first of the Army Reserve armories that will be constructed under Public Law 783, 81st Congress, for which approximately $12,000,000 was appropriated for fiscal year 1953.

fense Department officials to provide data as to the number of officers retired for physical disability since Korea with less than a 75 per cent rating.

Here are the facts:

ARMY—Altogether, 1,193 officers and warrant officers have been retired with less than a 75 per cent rating since Korea, and of this number, better than two-to-one are non-Regulars. These non-Regulars are primarily Reservists and National Guardsmen who were recalled after Korea and who were wounded in action against the Communists. Of the 1,193 physical disability retirements on "short pay," 813 are non-Regulars and 380 are Regulars.

NAVY—About 900 officers have been retired for physical disability between 30 June 1950 and 28 Feb. 1953, of whom approximately 600 were retired with less than a 75 per cent rating.

MARINE CORPS—With the Army, the Marine Corps has taken the brunt of the casualties in the Korean fighting. It can be stated that a large majority of the 106 officers retired for physical disability since Korea with less than a 75 per cent rating are Purple Heart recipients. The 106 retirements with less than 75 per cent ratings are particularly significant in view of the fact that the total number of physical disability retirements since Korea is 160.

AIR FORCE—Data as specific as that supplied by the other Services was not forthcoming from the Air Force, but spokesmen indicated that the two-out-of-three ratio for less than 75 per cent disability ratings reported by the Navy and Marine Corps probably would hold true for the Air Force as well.

What this means is that hundreds of officers, wounded in Korea, are receiving less in benefits than would have been the case had they been wounded during WWII, notwithstanding the tremendous increase in the cost of living since that date.

Service morale and welfare officers tell of numerous instances where the reduced benefits have resulted in serious financial hardships for individuals and families.

They point out that young officers in the past could count on some degree of security if disabled in service and could rely on the 75 per cent payments to help them get on their feet and adjust to their disabling injuries or wounds and to civilian life.

This security has been destroyed by the change in the law pertaining to physical disability benefits.

Inquiries on Capitol Hill showed that legislators are not generally aware of the discrimination against officers wounded in action in Korea. It is possible that with disclosure of the facts, a demand will be made for an inquiry into this situation.

When the Career Compensation Act was being debated, a peacetime pay psychology was plainly evident. The point was stressed that in the past some officers, with relatively few years of service and with minor ailments were recipients of 75 per cent disability pay on a basis that was too liberal.

The JOURNAL acknowledged editorially that this allegation had some validity, but warned that a serious morale problem would develop in event of armed conflict.

Thus, only 17 days after the President signed the Career Compensation Act on 12 Oct., THE JOURNAL said editorially:

"While much may be said for the decision to deny increased retirement compensation for young officers of short service whose incapacity is relatively minor, it should not apply to those who are seriously wounded in action."

"A premium is placed on safety, if the country is disposed to be niggardly with those who sustain wounds in battle. It would be simple justice, and relatively inexpensive, to amend the Pay Act so as to provide retirement at 75 per cent of the new pay schedules for all who suffer 30 per cent or greater incapacity as a result of wounds in action."

THE JOURNAL, now able to report that hundreds of officers have been short-changed for their wounds in action, sees no reason to amend the earlier editorial—only to renew the appeal for remedial action.

The Chinese delegation of mourners who attended the Stalin funeral and, a few days later, that of the suddenly deceased Gottwald of Czechoslovakia as well, thrifly combined business with pleasure (if that is the right word) by negotiating a truly important agreement with Stalin's successor. With Thursday's departure of Chou En-lai and his entourage for Peking, Moscow announced completion of an arrangement whereby Russia will supply China with electrical and engineering equipment and technical advisers, in exchange for raw materials. The announced target on the one side is the building-up of China's electrical power, its mining, metallurgical, transportation, chemical and other industries, whose immense potential stirred the imagination of American engineers and statesmen in an earlier era. On the other side, Russia would benefit from provision of metals, food products, oils, silks, and leather. The compact is the first important diplomatic action of the new Russian regime, and offers its own evidence that no political split between Moscow and Peking is remotely in sight.

Dependency Ruling

As illustrated by the case of 2d Lt. Alta N. Meadows, Women's Medical Specialist Corps, the Comptroller General has ruled in decision B-113093 that: "A female officer in the uniformed service, who voluntarily assumes the support of her husband in order to permit him to attend college, although he is physically and mentally capable of self-support, does not have a husband who is 'in fact dependent' upon her for over half of his support within the meaning and intent of section 102 (g) of the Career Compensation Act of 1949, so as to entitle such officer to increased basic quarters allowance."

should have had 50 per cent more ammunition."

Share Responsibility Says Senator

Senator Knowland concluded:
"Then, if we want to take the responsibility of cutting down what it is, I think we have shared the responsibility with you; but if we have an Iron Curtain lowered so that we don't even know that you have requested more, then how in the world can the Congress exercise its Constitutional responsibilities? That is one very pertinent question."

Among the Senators questioning General Collins none was more appreciative of the general's position than Senator Symington, former Air Force Secretary, who had battled hard, even on Capitol Hill, against budget cuts in the Air Force imposed by his higher authority in the days of the "fat into muscle" defense economy drive.

Gen. Collins Fights Hard

Senator Symington said:
"I have heard him (General Collins) fight for the Army, everywhere it was proper, trying to secure people and materials, harder than I ever heard anybody fight for any Service, I think; but on the other hand, I thought, if we had a new civilian setup in the Department of Defense, we would begin to realize we should have a lot less butter and a lot more of the guns this committee has been recommending over a period of years, if we are going to fight this war successfully."

Now, as the Rockefeller Committee is in the midst of its work (a report is expected about 30 April) there are reports of cuts in defense spending, confirmed publicly by Secretary Charles E. Wilson. It will remain to be seen where the responsibility for the results of such action will be placed and maintained.

Senator Knowland's challenging statement recognizes the control of Congress over the Services by the appropriation of funds and the responsibility of Congress to raise and equip armies under the Constitution. He calls upon the military chiefs to share this responsibility with Congress. He does not, however, mention the responsibility of the civilian officials in the Defense Department who hold control over the chiefs.

As Senator Knowland observes, "that is a pertinent question,"—one which the Rockefeller Committee cannot properly evade.

Incentive Pay

not lose this pay. For lower ranks, it is $8.00 per month; $22.50 for top grade enlisted men.

The Commission will say that incentive pay of $100 a month for doctors should go only to doctors who are bona-fide volunteers for military service.

The Commission, its members obviously concerned with the loss in attractiveness of military careers, goes into the recent Congressional action cutting down the poundage limitation for transportation of household goods. Admiral Strauss and his associates will say that this limitation should be raised.

The Strauss Commission was created last October by former Secretary Robert A. Lovett at the request of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The Commission's findings will be transmitted to Capitol Hill by Secretary Wilson, who may or may not add comments of his own.

The report has been prepared by civilian consultants hired by the Commission.

Rear Adm. J. P. Womble, USN, has been the technical director of the Commission staff.

SecDef on Pay

military pay must not be allowed to lag behind civilian pay.

Only last week, the final semi-annual report of former Defense Secretary Lovett was made public. This report reiterated the plea for an increase in military pay.

According to Mr. Lovett, "its approval is desirable in the interests of fairness and justice for our men and women in uniform to enable them to make more adequate provision for the health and comfort of their families."

AT LAMBERT FIELD in St. Louis, a Caterpillar W20 Wagon, pulled by a Diesel DW20 Tractor, is loaded by a Lorain dragline powered by a Cat Diesel D13000 Engine. The wagon can handle 24 cu. yd. heaped. The 225-HP Cat Diesel Engine in the tractor and the 150-HP model in the dragline both operate at top efficiency on low-cost No. 2 furnace oil without danger of fouling.

Three big reasons to standardize on Caterpillar

FIRST, every Caterpillar Diesel Engine, Electric Set, track-type and wheel Tractor, Motor Grader and Earthmover is a product of the finest research and engineering experience in the industry. This experience guarantees dependable, rough-and-ready performance on any kind of military assignment. It always makes sense to standardize on the best.

SECOND, your parts problem can be cut 'way down when you operate all-Caterpillar equipment. The powerful Cat Diesel Engines, for example, that power work boats, locomotives, compressors, draglines, tractors, motor graders and earthmovers have many parts that are interchangeable. And they all operate on one type of fuel—low-cost, non-premium fuel.

THIRD, your operators can do a more efficient job working with a single manufacturer's equipment. One operator, familiar with Caterpillar Diesel Engines, can run and maintain many different kinds of machines.

Military equipment has a tough job ahead of it. It must be reliable equipment, simple to operate and maintain. By standardizing on Caterpillar, you're sure your equipment gives back an honest return for the investment it represents.
